File of Papers "Mysteriously Disappears"

Important Documents and Letters Relating to University Contract Vanish, Committee Is Informed

Premier and Dr. Sutherland Testify

Hon. Mr. Oliver Blames Department Accountant for Not Having Given Him Correct Information

WHAT has become of file number 191 of the Public Works Department?

That is the question which is agitating members of the opposition and others of the Public Accounts Committee investigating the methods of the Government in making over-commitments in connection with the University of British Columbia construction of $1,229,000.

Mr. Hood, chief accountant, Department of Public Works, in his testimony before the committee yesterday, referred to the file as the one which had "mysteriously disappeared." It had contained important letters and documents dealing with the University construction. When it had been removed from its customary place it had been checked to him under the system of filing and he, he said, was technically responsible. Yet he knew nothing of its disappearance. Hon. Dr. W. H. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works, knew nothing about it. Mr. Philip, the Deputy Minister of Public Works, knew nothing about it. In fact, nobody could be found yesterday who had knowledge of its whereabouts.

"Mysteriously Disappears"

It was recalled that both Hon. Dr. Sutherland and Premier Oliver had stated in most emphatic terms on the floor of the House that every document, letter and detail connected with the over-commitments would be placed before the Public Accounts Committee for investigation. All the cards would be placed face up before the opposition members, Hon. Dr. Sutherland said.

Jesuit Relics Transferred

Everybody Exhorted To Write Premier

New Peace Propaganda Started in Britain by Labor Member of Parliament

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The latest peace propaganda has been organized by Arthur Ponsonby, Labor member for the Brightside division of Sheffield, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the late Labor Government, the cardinal point of which consists of an exhortation to everybody to write to the Premier of Great Britain setting forth the personal conviction of the writer that the nations of the world are capable of settling their own disputes by negotiations or arbitration.

With a view to facilitating the suggested letters, 20,000 copies have been circulated, each copy being capable of bearing fifty signatures.

British Labor Plans Boycott if Fascist Head Makes Visit

LONDON, Nov. 13.—British Labor leaders and Labor members of Parliament, says The Westminster Gazette, intend to boycott Premier Mussolini of Italy if he comes to London to sign the Locarno security pact, and will not attend any function in his honor to which they may be invited. The paper adds that others may associate themselves with the action of Labor.

Charles G. Ammon, formerly Parliamentary Secretary for the Admiralty, is quoted as saying that the British public generally ought to endorse such an attitude.

A. J. Cook, Secretary of the Miners' Federation, declares that he will put every obstacle in the way of recognition of the Italian Premier in Great Britain.

King Tutankhamen Found To Have Been Boy of 16

Archaeologists Grow Jaded With Sight of Jewels and Treasure as Mummy Is Unwrapped—Body Sheathed in Sheets of Gold—Crown on Forehead

Special Correspondent of The Colonist and the North American Newspaper Alliance.

LUXOR, Egypt, Nov. 13.—The mummy of Tutankhamen is that of a boy king who died at an age of probably not more than sixteen.

This information came today at the end of a strenuous day's work by the archaeologists, during which jewels and treasure were revealed in such quantities that even Howard Carter and the other experts grew surfeited at the sight of them.

This was the day of all days in the Valley of the Kings. Secretly the inner coffin of Tutankhamen had been carried on a covered stretcher to the tomb of Seit, the second tomb in the extreme corner of the royal necropolis, and today—with only two tourists venturing through the deathly heat to the valley, there snapshotting each other in apparent solitude, ignorant of the drama being enacted underground a few yards away—the supreme moment of all archaeological research was reached.

Crown Jewels of Egypt Revealed

Tutankhamen had been x-rayed, but privately, so that some hint of what was to come was known to a privileged few. But the dark splotches on the photographic plates taken through the burial clothes could give but the merest hint of the unimaginable splendors, dwarfing all that has gone before and that so excited the world three years ago, which met human eyes for the first time in 3,273 years when the crown jewels of ancient Egypt were revealed today to an awed little group.

"No living man ever dreamed of such a find as this," declared one of the spectators to me at the close of

Election Act on Absentee Vote To Be Amended

While Not Admitting Defects Exist, Premier Oliver Says He Will Bring Down Improving Legislation

Proof Burned, He Is Told

Premier Oliver stated in the Legislature yesterday that he would bring down legislation to improve the Election Act in an effort to cure some of the defects that had been alleged existed in the present act in respect to the absentee vote.

He asked that the Opposition assist in making the Act as safe as possible. This same request, he said, had been made when the Act was last amended, but had not been taken advantage of, although the Opposition had been criticising ever since.

The matter came up when Mr. R. H. Pooley, Conservative leader, asked for a return of the correspondence between the Government and registrars of voters relative to the working of the Election Act.

In his comments, the Premier said that he would not admit that the defects, alleged by the Conservative members, really existed, because nothing had been proved.

Col. Cy. Peck, V.C., member for The Islands, interjected that nothing could be proved owing to the North Vancouver ballots having been burned.

"I am not going to stand for any more of this," hotly retorted the Premier. "I am not going to take any more slurs about that matter. The law was complied with; it was plain, and it was carried out."

"I don't intend to put up with any more of your bravado," answered Col. Peck, and the incident closed.

Philippines Shaken By Earth Tremors

Same Shocks Are Picked Up in Hawaiian Islands and Also Washington City

MANILA, Nov. 14.—The centre of the earthquake which shook Manila last night was a short distance southwest of the Island of Samara, one of the western islands of the Philippine group. The entire island was shaken, but only slight damage has been reported.

HONOLULU, Nov. 13.—Distant earthquakes starting at 1:56 a.m. today, Honolulu time, were recorded by the U.S. Magnet Observatory at Ewa, on this island. The shocks continued about two hours. They were about the same distance away, and of about the same intensity as those the Ewa seismograph recorded November 10.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—A serious earthquake, apparently centring at a great distance from Washington, left its record today on the seismographs of Georgetown University. It began at 6:12 a.m., eastern time. Allowing for difference in time, the earthquake was the identical one felt at Manila at 8:15 tonight.

Recovering From Wounds

VANCOUVER, Nov. 13.—Found lying by the roadside in South Vancouver last evening, with a broken jaw, a gashed cheek and other severe wounds, "Billy" Costa, a Hindu, was taken to hospital, where he was recovering today. He was unable to speak, but police have several clues as to the identity of his assailant.

Drops Dead on Car

VANCOUVER, Nov. 13.—"I'm a sick man this morning," said Frank Lobban, sixty, today when he boarded a street car in South Vancouver, on which he dropped dead a few minutes later. He had been fishing in the Fraser River.

Premier Bruce Confident of Victory at Polls—Strenuous Campaign Ends—Labor Leader Rapped

MELBOURNE, Nov. 13.—Premier Stanley M. Bruce today concluded the most strenuous election campaign in which he has ever been engaged and professed confidence as to the result of the voting tomorrow.

He has visited five states of the Commonwealth and has covered more than 19,000 miles in the last few weeks. He has addressed more than eighty meetings.

The Premier, referring today to the election manifesto of Matthew Charlton, the Labor leader, said Charlton had not mentioned the attitude of the Labor Party toward the extremists in the Labor movement. The Bruce Government, he said, would either throw the extremists out or tuck them away in jail.

Premier Bruce declared that the workers were against "making a national hero of any misguided lunatic who chanced upon Australian shores."

He added: "Sixty thousand men laid down their lives for ideals and it would be a wrong step tomorrow to destroy everything for which the soldiers fought."

The Premier's remark about "making a national hero of any misguided lunatic" is taken to refer to Tom Welsh, president of the Australian Seamen's Union, and an active spirit in the unofficial strike of British seamen in Australia.

Premier Leaves Ottawa To Take Short Vacation

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—Premier Mackenzie King has left Ottawa for a brief rest before embarking on preparations for the opening of Parliament next month. No Cabinet meetings will take place during the remainder of this week. The Premier will return next week.

Retreat to Manchuria May End China Warfare

CHANG TSO LIN

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—Marshal Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian leader, has issued orders for all Fentien troops to withdraw to Manchuria. This, it is believed by the Foreign Office, which received the news in an official dispatch from Mukden, will have the effect of postponing the civil war in China indefinitely.

Sunken Sub Crew Given Up for Dead

Divers Go Down to British Wreck But All Hope for Sixty-Eight Men Has Already Been Abandoned

Officials Insist Vessel Seaworthy

Friends Tell of Artificer's Premonition of Disaster—Submarine Previously Had Acted Queerly

TOULON, France, Nov. 13.—Two men dead and four wounded aboard the French submarine Nereide, as a result of an explosion today, represent France's contribution to the epidemic of submarine disasters visited in turn upon the American, British, Italian and French navies within the past two months.

The explosion on the Nereide occurred while the accumulators were being charged. The submarine was towed into the inner basin of Toulon harbor and probably will be saved.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., Nov. 13.—All hope of rescuing any of the sixty-eight officers and men of the submarine monitor M-1, which disappeared off the Devon Coast yesterday morning, has been abandoned. It is believed the sunken craft has been located in 225 feet of water off Start Point, and a last effort will be made early tomorrow morning by a mine sweeper to get in definite contact with the boat.

Divers, however, are unable to work at such depths, and the possibility of bringing up any of the crew alive is regarded as hopeless. Two divers, however, have volunteered to make the attempt.

Arrangements have been made for a memorial service at Portland Dockyard Church Sunday morning.

Wreck Found

Throughout last night and today a fleet of rescue ships searched the waters within a wide range of Start Point. This afternoon a wreck was discovered which, despite the fact the channel is strewn with wrecks, is believed to be the missing submarine.

No explanation for the disaster is offered, the officials insisting that the ship was seaworthy.

280 Victorians Not Only Pay Taxes, But Also Prepay, and Even Overpay Them!

Would you believe it?

Not only have hundreds of Victorians voluntarily paid their taxes in advance, but 280 of them have actually paid the city more than the city asks!

So, today, His Worship the Mayor will sign 280 cheques, and a little later 280 citizens will receive a most pleasant surprise in the shape of repayment by the city of overpayment of prepaid 1925 taxes.

It's all easy to understand, according to City Treasurer Smith.

He says that the city had a big surplus at the beginning of the year and, therefore, did not have to levy for so big a total. He says, moreover, that the assessment on land was slashed considerably. Thus many people had a smaller tax bill than they did in 1924. And 280 of these people didn't realize their good fortune, but prepaid their taxes under the pessimistic impression that their bills were just as high as ever.

There will be a good many good cigars smoked tomorrow.

Trial Not Problem Play Court Charges Wong Jury

"You Must Not Guess, Let Your Guess Be Ever So Accurate"—"Try to Forget Attorney-General and Jackson and All That Mess We Have Got Into"—

VANCOUVER, Nov. 13.—One and one-half hours were taken by Mr. Justice Morrison at the Wong abduction trial here this evening to charge the jury.

The general tenor of his charge was in favor of the accused. He praised Mr. C. W. Craig, K.C., for his handling of the Crown's case.

He pointed out that Hon. A. M. Manson was exposed to criticism on account of the office he held.

He attacked the evidence which implicated the accused.

"At the most they are only accessories after the fact with which, of course, they are not charged," said the court.

"Do your duty and try to forget the Attorney-General and Jackson and all that mess we have got into."

Acquit if in Doubt

"The impression upon your mind in order to convict ought to be not that the prisoners are probably guilty, but that they are really and absolutely so. Where you doubt you ought to acquit.

"For the proper administration of justice, each legislature has as one of its ministers an attorney-general, in whom is reposed the trust of setting in motion that machinery in all proper cases on behalf of the public. He stands indifferent between the person laying a charge and the person charged, and it is his duty to see that the particular charge is followed, according to its nature and incidence to a final determination, without fear or favor.

Public Interest Paramount

"If at any time circumstances should conspire to bring about a conflict between his duty as a servant of the public, and his own interests, political or otherwise, he must, as in the case of any other trustee, relinquish his trust.

"After centuries of development in England of which we have the benefit, there have been established sound principles and effective machinery whereby in cases where there is charged a breach of our laws, the public on the one hand are protected, and on the other the rights of an accused are safeguarded.

"By and large our laws, based upon those principles and enforced by the means afforded, are as nearly perfect as anything can well be in an imperfect world made up of an infirm humanity. The trouble arises in the administration of those laws. And the proper administration of the laws resolves itself in terms of an individual or group of individuals.

Prophecies Reach $250,000 as Sum Of City's Surplus

ESTIMATES of the surplus the city will have on hand at the end of the year vary from $200,000 to $250,000, according to the optimism of the prophets at the City Hall pending the statement which City Comptroller D. A. Macdonald is expected to furnish the City Council on Monday night. Comptroller Macdonald himself is silent on the question; but others in a position to make a fairly accurate guess, predict a large surplus as a precursor to substantial tax reductions next year. Expenditures have been below the estimates, taxes have been coming in faster than was expected, and the sale of reverted lands has alone brought over $200,000 into the city treasury. These factors reduce the sum for which the city will have to levy next year.

Embargo Placed On Grain Flow To Coast Ports

Railways Stop Shipments Until Congestion in Elevators and Drying Plants Has Been Removed

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—Officials of the Canadian National Railway officially announced tonight that an embargo on grain movements westward to Calgary and Vancouver would become effective at midnight Saturday night and continue until such time as congestion in the elevators and drying plants was removed.

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—Because a considerable quantity of Western wheat has turned out tough and damp owing to weather conditions that have prevailed on the prairies, effective midnight Saturday, November 14, an absolute embargo on all grain to the Pacific Coast will be imposed and will remain in effect until such time as conditions now prevalent are relieved, according to a statement received here today from E. D. Cotterell, superintendent of transportation Western lines, C.P.R.

Noted Jew Dies

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Henry Strau Quixano Henriques, one of the most noted figures of British Jewry, died here today, aged fifty-nine. He was the author of a number of works on legal subjects pertaining to the status of Jews in England.

Tribesmen Burning Christian Villages

Druses Reported Advancing Toward Palestine Frontier—Rebels Take Hasbaya

JERUSALEM, Nov. 13.—The Druse tribesmen are advancing toward the Palestine frontier in the region below Damascus, and have captured Hasbaya, forty miles southeast of Damascus, according to dispatches received here today.

One report states that the Druses, after occupying Hasbaya, burned the large Christian village of Kukebe and killed some of its inhabitants. Other Christian villages in this district were occupied by the Druses and the inhabitants are fleeing to Palestine.

Factional Fight On Union Issue Aired in Court

Case of St. Andrew's, Nanaimo, Is First in British Columbia Arising Out of Recent Merger

Purging Communion Roll

NANAIMO, Nov. 13.—After a two-day session in the Supreme Court before Mr. Justice Murphy the last of the evidence was given tonight in a civil action instituted by unionist members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here against the trustees of St. Andrew's Church regarding the legality of the vote taken on church union when the anti-unionists won by ten votes. Court adjourned tonight at 9 o'clock, to be resumed in Vancouver on Monday morning next at 11 o'clock when Mr. Justice Murphy will hear arguments of counsel and render a decision.

Minister Explains

Rev. David Lister, the minister, took the stand when court was resumed this morning, and stated that he had been credited with being the whole session of St. Andrew's Church, but he wished to deny the impeachment. Upon being questioned by the prosecution, he stated that he thought the duties of moderator of the church were to supervise the spiritual work, preside and keep order. He believed the communion roll should be the property of the clerk of session, but it had been handed to him by his predecessor, and it differed from some communion rolls to the extent of having sections for deaths, births and marriages, which he had to record. He had not altered the communion roll at any time without instructions from the session. He said the list had been purged in 1921 and 1923, and in the second year it was understood by the session that the "dead wood" was to be removed. One reason for striking off names was due to the fact that dues to presbytery were based on membership of the church and it was deemed inadvisable by the session to pay for mem-

Commons Seating Presents Problem

Where Will Progressives Sit? Ottawa Asks—Many Conservatives Puzzle

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—Seating accommodation for members in the new House presents a complex problem. Where will the Progressives sit? Around this question considerable conjecture centres.

In the last House Liberals, as is customary for the Government party, sat to the right of the Speaker, with Conservatives as the official Opposition, immediately opposite. Progressives also sat on the Opposition side but farther away from the Speaker than the Conservatives. Robert Forke, Progressive leader, sat on the Opposition side, about half way down the House.

But this arrangement will not now be so convenient. Conservatives have more than doubled their representation and if the Progressives sit on their left flank their leader will be near the far end of the Chamber. On the other hand if Progressives choose to sit on the same side as the Liberals, but farther away from the Speaker, they will not be in much more favorable position.

There will be a conference between party whips, or nominees of party leaders, and House officials, before any final step is taken.

Three Cleared Of Complicity In Abduction

Jurors Find Commissioner McDonald, Chief Murdoch and Sergt. Kirkham Innocent in Wong Case

Disagree at First On Two of Counts

Go Out Second Time to Return Ten Minutes Later Fully Exonerating Accused Police Officers

VANCOUVER, Nov. 13.—Concluding a most sensational and spectacular trial, an Assize Court jury of ten men and two women, after three hours' deliberation, at 4.55 o'clock this evening returned a verdict of not guilty to charges against three Point Grey police officials—Commissioner H. O. McDonald, Chief Constable John Murdock and Detective Sergeant Percy Kirkham—of complicity in the abduction of Wong Foon Sing.

On the application of Mr. Alex. Henderson, K.C., defending counsel with Mr. Stuart Henderson, Mr. Justice Morrison ordered the discharge of the accused from custody.

The jury retired at 2 o'clock and returned at 4:45 p.m.

Disagree at First on Two Counts

The foreman announced that the jury found the accused not guilty of the first two counts, which charged kidnapping and assaulting and seizing; but disagreed on the remaining two counts of the indictment, which charged confining and imprisoning.

"Do you take that as a verdict of not guilty?" inquired Mr. Justice Morrison, of Crown Prosecutor C. W. Craig, K.C.

"I would not like to pass on that now, Your Lordship," replied counsel.

The court asked the foreman whether there was any chance for an agreement on the last two counts.

"I believe there is so, if we had a little more time," answered Foreman Louis Manderville.

His Constituents Want to Know Where They Are

Mr. R. W. Bruhn, Member for Salmon Arm, Asks Legislature for Redistribution of His Riding

Roadway Is Advocated

Constructive criticism of Government policies, with a measure of praise for administrative actions which he deemed worthy of commendation, featured the speech of Mr. Rolf W. Bruhn, Conservative member for Salmon Arm, in the debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne, in the Legislature yesterday. Mr. Bruhn advocated construction of fifty miles of roadway through the North Thompson Valley to connect up with existing highways and the road being built by the Alberta Government to Jasper Park; he made a plea for cheaper stumping powder; issued warning against the encroachments of Orientals in the farming industry; praised the workings of the Associated Growers' Relief Act; urged improvement of the forestry protection service; offered advice on the operation of the game act; and on several other phases of the country's business expressed his opinions based on experience.

In his opening remarks the Salmon Arm member referred to a remark made about campaign funds by the labor member for South Vancouver the previous day. When he had to accept campaign funds from any source he would quit politics, declared Mr. Bruhn. He had paid his own way in politics and would continue to do so.

Caution Necessary

He complimented the Labor members on the manner in which they had presented the views of their party. He would approach the idea of compulsory minimum wage with caution. Were such a law established there would follow on the part of employers the tendency to hire only the most efficient workmen, and those less able to compete would be forced into the ranks of the unemployed.

The speaker went on to repeat his request of last year that his riding be redistributed. A portion of it, he said, properly belonged to the Kamloops constituency. He brought the matter to the attention of the House at the request of residents in that section of the Salmon Arm district. Swift Creek, he said, in the locality affected was in the Salmon Arm electoral district, the Lucerne police district, the Kamloops forestry district, and the Fort George Land district. It made his constituents dizzy to find out where they belonged.

Expense Would Be Repaid

He asked that more highways be provided long the North Thompson, stating that it required but fifty miles of roadway to connect existing highways with the proposed road being

City Petition Gets Support

Chamber of Commerce Endorses Attitude in Respect to Westholme Lumber Co. Move

A committee will be named by the Chamber of Commerce to take whatever steps are deemed necessary to aid the city council in the presentation of its case against the attempt on behalf of the Westholme Lumber Company, now in liquidation, to get legislation through the Legislature this session similar to that it was attempted to have passed last year.

The effect of this legislation, it was explained before the directors of the chamber yesterday by Mr. H. S. Pringle, city solicitor, would be to have everything ever in dispute between the city and the company open to being passed upon by an engineer appointed under an order of the Privy Council, to pass only upon questions in dispute arising after the city took over the undertaking from the company.

The danger of such legislation, he said, was very serious from the standpoint of the city. He recalled the litigation, step by step, which had arisen out of this dispute. There had been permission granted by the Privy Council for the passing upon certain definite matters in dispute by an independent engineer. The legislation that was before the House would allow much more than the courts had specified and would make it possible to bring up everything that had ever been in dispute.

A petition against the passage of such legislation was signed by members of the board present and when the matter comes before the legislative committee a delegation will wait upon that body and urge the defeat of the proposed amendment.

File of Papers "Mysteriously" Disapepars

Yet there is file number 191, which has "mysteriously disappeared" and opposition members believe that it is, or was, the most important file of all.

Blame for the over-commitment of the Legislature's vote was placed yesterday by Premier Oliver on Mr. Alfred Hood, the chief accountant. This, Mr. Pooley, opposition leader, declared to be unfair, charging that under the University Loan Act, section 7, no expenditures could be legally undertaken except by authority of order-in-council, and that no such order-in-council had been passed prior to June 13 of this year. Therefore, he said, Mr. Hood could not be blamed because there was no authority for the building of the University or the making of any expenditures in connection with the work until June.

Premier Explains

The Premier explained fully the reason why he had not asked for a further grant for the University at the last session of the Legislature, having been led to understand that there was a sufficient balance remaining from the previous vote of $3,000,000. It was brought out in evidence that late in October and early in November, 1924, commitments of the Department of Public Works amounted to $3,233,181, and those of the Department of Lands to $735,022.83, or a total of $2,968,183.83.

It was from Mr. Hood, the Premier said, that he had obtained the information that had satisfied him that there was no need for an additional vote to be passed in the 1924 session.

Premier Much Concerned

Premier Oliver was called to the witness stand as soon as the committee convened. He was asked by Mr. Ian Mackenzie, chairman, to explain how and when the over-commitments on the University work first came to his attention.

"A few days previous to the opening of the Legislature in 1924," stated the Premier, "I enquired orally from the Department of Public Works as to the state of the University vote. I wanted to know whether it was necessary to submit legislation at the session.

"In response to that enquiry I received a memo which I cannot at this moment locate, but it was to the effect that we had a little less than $2,000,000. As a result, I was satisfied that it was not necessary to ask for legislation to increase the amount of the vote at the approaching session.

"The next time it came to my attention was in May. I returned from Ottawa on May 20 of this year, and immediately I was advised that more money was required for the University and an order-in-council was placed before me. I cannot recollect whether it was for $750,000 or $800,000. I was very much concerned.

Mr. Pooley—How did you obtain the information?

Absolved From Oath

Premier Oliver—It may have been by word of mouth, but in any event it came before me in the form of a draft order-in-council. I wish to explain here at the outset that under my oath of office I am precluded from divulging what takes place in Executive Council. This morning I waited on His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, and he absolved me from my oath to the extent that it is necessary to place the facts before this committee.

Continuing, the Premier said, "When the order-in-council was placed before me, I called attention to the Audit Act. I called Mr. Hood, Chief Accountant of the Public Works Department, and asked for an explanation.

"After questioning Mr. Hood," explained the Premier, "I was unable to elicit any information which would give a clear explanation of the facts. All I could get was a statement that over-expenditures were common, and he appeared to take the matter very lightly. I told Mr. Hood that this condition might be serious for him and the Government. Being unable to obtain any information from Mr. Hood that would help me to fix the responsibility, I called in the Comptroller-General and told him that I was unable to obtain a proper explanation from Mr. Hood, and asked him to take hold and make an enquiry and advise me. On June 8 I received a report from the Comptroller-General. This showed departmental commitments of $1,296,071. He said that this amount would have to be provided for."

Depends on Memory

Hon. Mr. Oliver explained that he was under some difficulty in giving evidence, as he was depending largely on his memory. He had a memo with him bearing date of June 4, 1925, which appeared to be a statement in detail of various contract prices, and the statement bore the stamp of the Chief Accountant of the Public Works Department.

The Premier said he could not remember if this detailed statement had been provided for him by Mr. Hood, or whether it had been attached to the report of the Comptroller-General. The statement showed totals of $4,185,299. He had a footnote on the report from the Comptroller-General to the effect that a memo was prepared for the Premier, which showed the principal contracts on buildings alone.

The copy of the memo furnished him today, said the Premier, was not in accordance with the memo he received in October, for his recollection was that it was directed to him as Premier, and the memo he had with him was not addressed to anyone. His memory suggested that the memo he could not locate had been on a single sheet of paper. The figures on the memo before him, however, appeared to be similar to those on the memo given him in October.

The memo before him, said the Premier, gave expenditures at the time of $1,197,105.99, while there was another column of figures that gave "contracts" at the time at $2,233,181.

"According to the figures," stated the Premier, "there was at that time $1,802,894 available under the Loan Act."

Mr. Pooley—You mean unexpended?

"Yes."

Facts Reported

In further explanation, Mr. Oliver stated that in October he was led to believe from the figures furnished to him that there was a balance of $766,000 in excess of commitments.

In answer to a question by Mr. Pooley, the Premier said that in his opinion he had ample justification, on the figures presented to him, for the belief that no further legislation was necessary in 1924 in connection with the building of the University. After he had received the report of the Comptroller-General he had placed all the facts before His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

Chairman Mackenzie—Was that report to His Honor made verbally?

Premier Oliver—There was a written communication, the nature of which I am not at liberty to disclose, but I may say that after the receipt of the Comptroller-General's report I placed all the facts before His Honor. That concludes my evidence, and if there is anything else you wish you may have it by examination of me.

Mr. Pooley—You knew this vote for the University was used by two departments?

"I did."

"Did you ask from the Lands Department for the commitments in connection with University lands?"

"My recollection," answered the Premier, "is that I asked for a report on the state of the vote without reference to either department."

Mr. Pooley—Who did you ask?

Premier Oliver—I do not remember; but I usually ask my secretary to obtain any information I require from the proper sources.

Chief Clerk Blamed

After some further questioning, which resulted in the Premier reiterating his statement that he felt justified prior to the last session in not asking for further money, Mr. Pooley asked:

"Mr. Premier, who do you blame for not providing you with the correct information?"

Premier Oliver—The information I received would indicate that the blame was with the chief clerk and accountant of the Public Works Department.

Mr. Pooley—Are you aware that your Minister omitted to obtain any order-in-council for the University work until June this year?

Premier Oliver—I doubt that.

Mr. Pooley replied that he would obtain a copy of the order-in-council, and he read from Order-in-Council No. 637, dated June 18, 1925, which gave authority to the Public Works Department to carry out the work of building the University and to make payments from the Consolidated Revenue funds for the same to the extent of $2,907,335.

Mr. Pooley—I suggest that this is the first order-in-council you passed in conformity with Section 7 of the University Loan Act.

Premier Oliver—You are making the suggestion.

Mr. Pooley—You must have known of this. Why did you sign it as presiding officer?

Premier Oliver—It was a proper order.

Little Difference in Amount

Mr. Pooley commented that it was apparent that it was the first order-in-council giving authority for the expenditure of money on the University, and the amount was but little different from the amount set out in the memorandum quoted by the Premier as being the amount noted in the auditors' statement.

The Premier said that he would not state that it was the first order-in-council.

Mr. Pooley—Was it?

Premier Oliver—I cannot say offhand.

Mr. Pooley—Would you sign that and not know about it?

"No."

Mr. Pooley—Was it reported to you that another oversight had been made, and that the order-in-council should have been passed before, in conformity with Section 7?

Premier Oliver—I have no recollection of such being the case.

Mr. Pooley—I make the statement that there was no previous order-in-council authorizing the work, because you are unfair in trying to put the blame on the chief clerk and accountant, and there was no authority for the undertaking until June 13 last.

No Money Received

Mr. H. F. Kergin, secretary of the committee, asked the Premier if he had seen the headlines of The Province story on Thursday, and asked him if he had received any money from the Royal Bank for financing the work. The Premier replied in the negative.

Chairman Mackenzie said that he resented bitterly press reports that misled the public on what took place before the committee.

Premier Oliver added that he would like to state for the benefit of the press and public that many draft orders-in-council were submitted to the executive that were not given approval by the Cabinet.

The Premier, before retiring, offered to quote from authorities in support of his actions, and stated that he was willing to attend the committee at any time to explain any point upon which information was desired.

Architect Testifies

Mr. Henry F. Whittaker, chief architect of the Department of Public Works, was sworn.

Mr. Pooley—Did you prepare a statement dealing with the University of British Columbia?

Mr. Whittaker—Yes, it was for use in the House last session in connection with the University vote.

Mr. Pooley—Where did you get your information?

Mr. Whittaker—From the files of the Public Works Department.

Mr. Pooley—Was there any reference in that statement to the amount of commitments in connection with the townsite area?

Mr. Whittaker—It had nothing to do with that.

Mr. Pooley—You kept a copy of that statement on your files?

Mr. Whittaker—Yes, Department file No. 5501.

Mr. Pooley—Did you prepare any figures for the statement made by Premier Oliver?

Mr. Whittaker—No.

Mr. Pooley—You heard his statement that he had secured a statement from the Department of Public Works? The figures are the same as those in your statement.

Mr. Whittaker—Yes. The Premier evidently secured his information from the same source used by myself.

Mr. Pooley—Any official in your department could have access to those files I suppose?

Mr. Whittaker—Yes.

Familiar With Work

In answer to Captain Ian Mackenzie, Mr. Whittaker declared that he had been supervising architect since 1922. He was familiar with the work done at the University. In his opinion it had been excellent, and the Government had obtained good value for the money spent. The cost to the Government for renovating old electrical work in the science building had been six or seven thousand dollars, and for repairing drains, six or seven thousand.

Capt. Mackenzie—Suppose the Government had closed down the work last March, what would the cost have amounted to?

Mr. Whittaker—It would have been so big that I hate to make a guess at it; probably over $100,000.

Capt. Mackenzie—Are you acquainted with the alterations made from time to time in the new buildings?

Mr. Whittaker—Yes. They were caused through changes made in the plans and specifications on the responsibility of professors of the University, approved of by President Klinck.

Capt. Mackenzie—Something over which the Government had no control.

Mr. H. Despard Twigg—How does he know? The Government had authority to stop the whole work if it so wished.

Capt. Mackenzie—Did the contractors have any control over these additions and alterations?

Mr. Whittaker—No.

Capt. Mackenzie—From your experience are you quite satisfied with the work done in connection with electrical appliances and plumbing in the new buildings?

Mr. Whittaker—Absolutely.

Mr. C. McRae—In view of the large amount expended, is it reasonable to suppose that Premier Oliver

"Expenditures" Are Different to "Commitments"

Since the start of the hearing before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature of the Government's case in respect to over-commitments of $1,229,000 made in respect to construction at the new University of British Columbia buildings, some confusion has occurred relative to the definition of the words "expenditures" and "commitments."

It is pointed out that expenditures deal with sums of money actually spent, whereas commitments deal with sums of money equal to the amount of contracts entered into. The Government might have the spending of a vote of $1,000,000; half of it might be expended, and thus come under the heading of expenditures, whereas commitments made by the Government in contracts might equal the whole amount.

Chamber Aids In Water Bill

Mayor Pendray's Appeal for Acquisition of Esquimalt System Endorsed

The Chamber of Commerce will lend its aid to the City Council in endeavoring to have Victoria's legislation dealing with the acquisition of the Esquimalt waterworks system put through the Legislature. At the meeting of the directors of the body yesterday the action of the City Council in the matter was endorsed and a committee will be appointed to aid in the undertaking the council has before the Legislature. A petition endorsing the City Council in this matter was circulated and signed at the meeting.

Mayor Pendray, speaking on the question, said the city could not afford to have this agreement not carried out. It was a real business proposition. The bill should be put through the Legislature as it stood. He himself could not think of leaving for Winnipeg as he had intended to take part in the conference there.

No Injustice Attempted

There was no attempt on the part of the city, said the Mayor, to work any injustice upon neighboring municipalities. Under the proposition it was proposed to charge Saanich only one cent a thousand gallons over the cost to the city. Under agreement at present Oak Bay could be charged 2¼ cents a thousand profit over the cost.

He opposed turning over to the Provincial Water Board the right to decide the rates. Thre would be danger in such a course, he considered.

The question was asked if an arbitration board should not be provided for to settle any difference of opinion as to rates.

The Mayor said he would be agreeable to incorporating that feature provided the city should have the cost and a fair profit.

Clause Should Be Fair

An arbitration clause similar to that which existed for the settling of questions affecting the expropriation of lands it was considered by the meeting should be a fair one. This clause would provide for each side in case of dispute naming an arbitrator and these agreeing upon a third, and thus the questions should be adjudicated upon.

Exception Taken To Reflections Upon His Honor

Mr. J. R. Colley, Member for Kamloops, Resents Remarks Made by Mr. H. Despard Twigg

Did No Business—But May

Vigorous exception to attacks which, he charged, had been made against his honor by the leader of the Opposition and by Mr. H. Despard Twigg, third member for the City of Victoria, were voiced in the Legislature yesterday afternoon by Mr. J. R. Colley, of Kamloops, when he made a brief contribution to the debate on the address in reply to the King's Speech.

Mr. Colley declared that, as the courts had decided that he was innocent of any wrongdoing in connection with charges brought against him in respect to his actions since his election in Kamloops riding in June, 1924, it was poor form for any member of the Legislature to ignore the judgment of the courts and continue to assert that he had committed a breach of law. He claimed that the charges made against him, of entering into contracts to supply Government departments with gooda since his election, had been based entirely on a technicality, and had been proved to be mistaken. He quoted from the transcript of evidence taken at the trial and from the statement of the judge, in order to substantiate his statements.

Mr. H. Despard Twigg had stated in the House, he said, that while he (Mr. Colley) had not been found guilty in a court of law, he had been convicted in the court of honor. Mr. Colley said that, on the contrary, it was Mr. Twigg who was in danger of being judged adversely in the court of honor and he (Mr. Colley) would challenge Mr. Twigg's honor for making that remark.

Incorporation Suggested

His honor, he said, had always been recognized by the citizens of Kamloops. They had continued to return him to public office for ten years, and if they had not believed in his honor, they would not have given him their support. The Kamloops people had been disgusted by the action of the Conservatives in bringing the charges against him, and he had been told by a member of the Kamloops Conservative Association that Mr. Pooley, when he had made a speech at Kamloops had not breathed a word about the charges.

Mr. Colley declared that some person went so far as to forge his name on a voucher for fifty cents' worth of bone-meal. "That was some bonehead trick to do, wasn't it?" he asked.

"Would I do such a small thing as that when I could, by incorporating a private company in my wife's name, and with my advantage as a member of the Government, get all the Government's business in the Kamloops riding? Some of the contracts given last year amounted to as much as $15,000.

"If this persecution keeps up I might be forced to incorporate and then I can share in the Government's business as I see fit."

Had Done No Business

Mr. Colley denied that he had done any business with the Government since he was elected. The leader of the Opposition, in his address, had referred to a clerk named Hillaker, and said that Mr. Hillaker's name was on a voucher for goods sold to the Government by his (Mr. Colley's) firm. If Mr. Hillaker sold anything to the Government, he said, the goods sold had never belonged to him.

Such tactics as those which had been used against him forced people to say: "Colley, they don't want a man like you in public life, they want rabbits." Abuse such as had been directed against him was the sort of thing that caused bolshevism, Mr. Colley added. He was not surprised that there had been talk of the Ku Klux Klan in the House.

Referring to matters which were of interest to the people of British Columbia as a whole, Mr. Colley declared that he was opposed to the principle of the absentee voting system, and he would like to see the system abolished. Under present arrangements there was no secrecy in the absentee vote, he said.

In conclusion he mentioned the progress of work in the construction of the Provincial Highway, and said that when completed, the road would be one of which British Columbia might well be proud.

The Session

The House Enjoys Itself—Although It Is Friday the Thirteenth—And Clouds Lower on the Government Benches—The House Sits Back and Smiles—While the Member for Alberni Entertains It—While Bruhn of Salmon Arm Takes the Spacious View

The Press Gallery,
Friday.

The House enjoyed itself today. All the antecedent signs and portents were those of gloom. Nevertheless, the House enjoyed itself. It met in the shadow of gathering storm clouds, which lowered heavy on the Government benches. The Premier was in trouble about the unauthorized expenditures upon the university. Hon. Attorney-General Manson was absent in Vancouver, giving evidence for a second time in rebuttal of statements seriously affecting the conduct of his office. There was the threat of imminent trouble about that. The debate on the Address, which was to have finished comfortably today, was not going to finish today, and everybody knew there was no hope of finishing it today. And, in addition to all this, it was Friday the thirteenth. Still, the House enjoyed itself.

It was a crowded House which greeted the rising of Major Richard Burde, M.C., the honorable and gallant and irrepressible member for Alberni. It was noted—the member for Alberni noted it himself, in the forefront of his speech—that the galleries were also crowded. Major Burde asked Mr. Speaker to observe that many distinguished strangers had come down to the House to hear him. Among these he mentioned by name his friend, Captain Gus Foellmer, commander of the Hudson Bay Company fur-trading vessel Baychimo, home from the Arctic after many moving adventures by breeze and flood, and happily home in time to hear his friend the major entertain the second session of the sixteenth Parliament. This nomination was contrary to the rules of the House, of course. But what was a little matter like that between friends? And the member for Alberni was among his friends today. It was his hour—it was his hour and a half, to be precise—and, heedless of all superstitions about the calendar, he made it a shining hour and a half, and improved it.

The major had some serious intimations for the attentive ear of the House. But such intimations were to be made decently and in order—or even in a sort of genial disorder. First of all, the member for Alberni had certain graceful little compliments to bestow. His eye lighted on his old friend Mr. Twigg, of Victoria, and he was immediately reminded of Mr. Twigg's similarity to the late Joseph Chamberlain. His eye lighted on his friend Mr. Hinchliffe, also of Victoria, and Major Burde was reminded of an ecclesiastical dignitary. He glanced across at his old commander at the front, General Victor Odlum, and he was reminded, with the very highest respect and affection for his old commander, of how his old commander had done him out of his rum ration at the battle of the Somme.

But it was when the keen eye of the happy major fell upon the stalwart form of his old friend the Hon. First Minister, that he became most embarrassingly and entertainingly reminiscent. The Hon. First Minister was affecting to improve this shining hour and half by reading a newspaper. The member for Alberni referred casually to the "honorable gentleman behind the newspaper, I forget what constituency he represents;" and then it was to be observed that the Premier lost interest in what he was reading. The Premier later smiled his acknowledgment of another hot shot. Major Burde explained to the House his plausible theory that the Premier was really the "greatest tory in the country, Mr. Speaker." It appeared, on further elucidation of his theory, that the Premier was on the Liberal side by accident. "When he started out in politics," said Major Burde, "he didn't know the difference between them, and there he's been sitting ever since."

The major was impartial in his compliments. They flew in all directions, sometimes like winged arrows, sometimes like hurled javelins; but if they always found their mark, and if they sometimes drew blood, they were at least not poisoned weapons. Government benches cheered when he said he would never put "Oliver out" to put "Bowser in." The opposition benches had their turn a moment later when he said that neither would he keep "Pooley out" to keep "Oliver in." And the House seemed to find some especial significance in Major Burde's declaration that he would help to turn the Government out this session if the opposition would support him in his proposed amendment of the Minimum Wages Act.

Still with effective strokes of a broad, genial humor, and still seasoning his discourse with a shrewd and ready wit, the major impressed the House when he pleaded for the enactment of a minimum wage for common laborers in the lumber industry. He was informative and amusing about his own district of Alberni, especially when he told how a delegation of boards of trade had met in Alberni and had followed one resolution demanding reduced taxation with another demanding development schemes for Vancouver Island which would cost the Government fifteen million dollars. He was in favor of scrapping both the P.G.E. and the University of British Columbia; and for the development of the province he especially commended to his honorable friend Mr. Charles Woodward, the engaging suggestion that fifty thousand of Vancouver's population should be immediately put to work at farming.

The major sat down amid smiles and cheers. And then the House was suddenly reminded that it was Friday the thirteenth. Mr. J. R. Colley, of Kamloops, was the reminder. Mr. Colley was in no mood for light humor. Mr. Colley betrayed symptoms of a deep personal emotion. He said his honor had been aspersed. This had been done, he said, by Mr. Pooley and Mr. Twigg, and he begged their colleagues to bring those absent members into the House, so that he could tell them what he thought of them. They came back, and he told them what he thought of them. They had no right to say what they had said about the Kamloops election petition. It seemed that what had really happened was that somebody had forged the name of Mr. Colley's firm to a contract with the Government for fifty cents worth of bonemeal. "Wasn't that a bonehead trick?" asked Mr. Colley. But the question was not answered, because by this time there were only six members left on the Government side of the House.

The House cheered up again, and Government members came back to their places, and everybody forgot about its being Friday the thirteenth, when Mr. R. W. Bruhn, of Salmon Arm, rose to make his contribution to the waning debate on the Address. He is a tall, straight man, of the Norse breed. He is a favorite with the House, and he is listened to with respect. He brings to the House something of the spaciousness of his far-stretched mountain riding. Something of that spaciousness was suggested by his presentation of the petition of those of his constituents who live in the Thompson Valley. These constituents, he said, properly belonged in the riding of Kamloops. He had to make a journey of 250 miles from where he lived to visit them. He presented the case of the Thompson Valley. He talked of roads and forest fires and game protection. He spoke as an authentic woodsman, even as a backwoodsman; and it was a characteristic touch which commended him to the House when he said he would not discuss the P.G.E. because he knew no more about it than many of the other honorable members who had discussed it.

The prospects for a short session remain unfavorable. The prospects of a sweet session have gone a-glimmering. The debate on the Address still meanders on. Attorney-General Manson is still to be heard in his own defence on matters arising out of the recent trials in the Vancouver assize court. The Hon. First Minister has still to be heard on other matters arising out of the unauthorized expenditures on the university. Mr. Pooley will be heard on these and other matters. There are clouds in the Government sky. Clouds and darkness encompass the silvered head of the much-enduring Premier. There are rumors in the lobbies, whispers in the corridors. "It is plausibly suggested," said the sardonic member for Mary Tod Island, "that we shall see what we shall see."

Houseboat Will Be Used for Mission

Metropolitan Sunday School Decides to Purchase Vessel for Work Among Fishermen

The purchase of a houseboat which will provide social, religious and library facilities for the fishermen on the coast of British Columbia is one of the latest decisions of the Metropolitan Sunday School. The subject was discussed at the meeting Thursday, and it was finally decided to undertake this work immediately, in addition to the allotment for the maintenance and extension fund.

The Victoria Presbytery and the British Columbia Conference over the Metropolitan United Church is getting into full swing on the work of the Winter. Departments are accepting their full share of the maintenance and extension fund of the United Church of Canada and have entered enthusiastically upon the season's programme. The attendance at the Sunday services is growing and interest is increasing steadily. Many communications have been received from outside points expressing appreciation of the services heard over the radio. The Sunday School is showing a record attendance, and is very active in the field of missionary enterprise and in athletics. The Sunday School has entered seven teams in the Sunday School Athletic League this season, and the gymnasium of the former Congregational Church is running full time. Many applications have been received from the suburban churches for the use of the gym, and it is hoped that some readjustment of the schedule can be made to encourage the young people at these churches.

On Sunday evening at the Metropolitan Church a great young people's service will be held. Dr Sipprell and the Rev. A. K. McMinn will take charge of the service jointly, and several young people will participate. There will be inspiring congregational singing and special music by a full choir. Dr. Sipprell and Mr. McMinn will speak briefly to the young people outlining the unique opportunities that are theirs in the world of today, especially through the United Church, with her world field involving international relations.

Dr. Sipprell will occupy the pulpit at the morning service and will preach on the subject, "A Challenge and a Chance." Both services will be broadcast by remote control from Radio CFCT.

POWER AT ANY PRICE

In his announcement that his Government will meet Parliament Mr. Mackenzie King says in a somewhat circuitous way that he proposes to "ascertain the attitude of the parliamentary representatives towards the very important question raised by the numerical position of the respective political parties." Put into bald English, this means that he is determined to see if the Progressives will support his Government. He takes the same attitude about those Progressives now as he did in 1921 when he told an Edmonton audience that "there is an indemnity of $4,000 and they (the Progressives) will think twice before voting us out." Mr. King does not entertain a very high estimate of the mental calibre of the allies he has in Parliament. It would seem, indeed, from his attitude that the maintenance of his party in office is everything and the good of the country of secondary account.

In commenting on Mr. King's decision about meeting Parliament, The Montreal Gazette refers to the Prime Minister having said that it is the constitutional duty of his Government to adopt this course. "Up to now," says The Gazette, "it has been the quaint practice of a beaten ministry to accept the verdict of the people and go into opposition, but, new times new manners, and if old-fashioned rules of parliamentary government cannot be adapted to the requirements of Mr. Mackenzie King, why, then, they can be disregarded." The Gazette, however, is assured that constitutional practice will reassert itself as it is the fundamental basis of the parliamentary system. It has no sympathy with the politician who seeks to temporize with so powerful a force and believes that he must inevitably become the victim of his own devices. The Gazette, indeed, considers that Mr. King's present course will lead to the demoralization of the Liberal Party and his own political extinction.

Mr. King in the election campaign said that if he were faced with conditions similar to those in the last Parliament, or, in other words, if he had not a distinct and workable party majority, he would ask for another dissolution and another election. A statement like this, of course, implied that he only looked at the political situation from his own party angle, and the possibility of an outcome just such as has happened. It was in the event of just such an outcome that he said he would ask for another appeal to the people. Now he says that an immediate dissolution and the expenses and turmoil of another general election would not be in the interests of the country. What Mr. King probably realizes, although he has been unable to interpret the verdict of the country, is that a minority group in Parliament cannot ask for dissolution, or at least cannot ask with any assurance that it would be granted. He wants, however, at any and all costs to retain control of the electoral machinery in view of another election and he hopes by meeting Parliament and showing he has the support of all elements outside the Conservatives that ultimately it will be his Government which will again appeal to the country. Mr. King, apparently, will not accept defeat. He thinks he knows better than the people of Canada what is good for the country and it would seem that he considers its greatest good is that he should remain in power.

A PULPWOOD EMBARGO

Mr. Frank J. D. Barnjum, who has done so much by publicity to draw the attention of the people of Canada to the manner in which their forest resources are being denuded for the benefit of American timber interests, has made some interesting comments on the late election. He says that in the election campaign practically every Conservative speaker declared for the policy of retaining our pulpwood and other natural resources for home manufacture, while not a single Liberal candidate ever mentioned the question. Mr. Barnjum then says:

> It would be interesting to know to what extent the American interests, intent upon despoiling our raw materials, contributed towards the silencing of these speakers, and just what proportion of the enormous campaign fund of the Liberal Party in this election was derived from that source. This is a subject of vital interest to the Canadian people. They want to know to what extent foreign interests are to be permitted through bribery and corruption to interfere with Canadian internal affairs.

Mr. Barnjum alludes to an interview he had with Mr. W. S. Fielding three years ago when he urged him to put an embargo on the export of unmanufactured pulpwood. Mr. Fielding, it appears, said at the time that he (Mr. Barnjum) was the only man in Canada asking for an embargo. Mr. Barnjum's reply was that that might possibly be so at the time, but that if the Liberal Government persisted in the ruinous policy of permitting the continued looting of our natural resources for the benefit of a foreign country, it would meet defeat the first time it faced the people and that one of the principal planks in the platform of the successful party would be, as it has since proved to be, the conservation of Canadian resources for the Canadian people. Mr. Barnjum has been a true prophet. The issue about which the people of Canada are most concerned at the present time is that of "Canada for Canadians."

REZA KHAN

The new dictator of Persia, the man who would be Shah—Reza Khan—was once a Cossack soldier. When the revolution took place in Russia and orders were received to have his regiment disbanded, Reza Khan disobeyed these orders. He appears to have continued the regiment with the support of the Persians, and he gathered the personnel of other disbanded regiments to its colors, and finally assumed command of a formidable little army. Subsequently, in 1921, he was strong enough to overawe a weak Persian Government, and to become Minister of War in that country. Now, by a peaceful coup d'etat, he has made himself dictator, and he has announced that he is firmly opposed to the idea of republicanism, which probably means that he will set up a dynasty to replace that of Ahmad Shah.

A disturbing feature of his accession to power is that he is believed to have the blessing of Soviet Russia. He is unlikely, however, to become the military tool of that authority. He is bent on internal reforms in Persia, and has appointed Dr. Arthur Millspaugh, an American, to be Administrator-General of the finances of the country. Reza Khan and his followers are in reality in a minority in Persia, but they are the best organized group and they have the backing of the army, comprising 40,000 men. He is of the type that makes dictators because he has courage and daring.

THE SUMAS PROJECT

Neither the people of British Columbia nor the Legislature can believe any statement from the Government to the effect that the taxpayers will escape scot free on account of expenditures on the Sumas reclamation work. The farmers of that area neither will nor can pay the cost, and many of them, rather than pay it, would in all probability abandon their holdings. The Government will be very much at fault if it seeks to create the impression that the Sumas project will create no burden for the taxpayers. As a matter of fact that burden now exists in the form of interest on Provincial indebtedness and the provision of a sinking fund to meet that indebtedness. The farmers have said very clearly that they do not intend to meet the over-expenditure on that project. It was claimed by the Government it would cost a certain amount and the actual outlay was greatly in excess of the estimate; in fact, we believe the figures were: Estimate, $1,000,000; expenditure, $3,000,000. The farmers are on strong ground in the attitude they have taken. The additional cost of the work will, in every probability, be saddled on the taxpayers. It is another instance of the prodigality of the Government in the handling of public funds.

GOVERNMENT SHIPS

On the eve of the recent election the Federal Government started to dispose of the Canadian Merchant Marine, a process for which, if we remember aright, it has the authority of Parliament. Reports said that eight of the steamers had been sold. The names of the buyers were mentioned but not the terms of the sale, nor the amounts realized. This is all information that should be available to the public. There should also be an announcement if the Canadian Merchant Marine is to be disposed of as a whole, or piecemeal. It is now an incumbrance on the finances of the country. The Liberal Government wanted to make it an even greater incumbrance still by subsidizing it so that freight rates on the North Atlantic might be reduced. This scheme was properly squelched, and the next thing heard of was that eight vessels of the Canadian Merchant Marine had been sold. In the fuss and flurry of the election this report passed almost unheeded by the general public, but the people ought to be informed what were the terms of the sale and what is to be the policy adopted regarding the rest of the fleet.

Jerome K. Jerome, the author, is taking strong exception to the ways of the American income tax officials. He says that for seven years the American Government has owed him some hundreds of pounds in respect of overcharges of income tax wrongfully deducted. "Every trick," says Mr. Jerome, "that official ingenuity can contrive is taken advantage of by the American Treasury to delay the repayment. The moment my agents have wrestled with one complicated formula, another is sprung upon them. The latest document from the Commissioner at Washington informs me that the matter is 'under consideration'."

BERLIN, Nov. 13.—The Reichstag has been convoked to meet November 20 and the debate on the Locarno treaties set for November 23.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

There are hundreds of millions of people in the world, most of them comparatively, a great number of them desperately, poor. But there should be at least one consolatory thought simmering feebly in the minds of the comparatively and the desperately poor people. The poet has told us that man wants but little here below, nor wants that little long. Another authority, not a poet, also tells us that however affluent a man may be, that man always wants more. And we assume that woman is not materially different from man in that respect.

We are told that the acquisitive people of the United States have collected and stored away more than half the gold supply of the world. Are the American people satisfied with their enormous stores of lustrous gold? No, sir-ee; they are not. "They want more." They are collecting gold from Great Britain, and before long they will be collecting gold from all the principal nations of Europe, with the exception of Russia, which is bailiff-proof, and is not, strictly speaking, a European nation.

Canada has become one of the great gold-producing nations of the world, and probably soon will be the chief gold-producing nation of the world. We doubt not that nearly all the gold that is produced from the new and rich fields of Northern Ontario, and from the mines of British Columbia, is carried across the border and stored in the strong boxes of the Government at Washington.

But the enterprising and the affluent people of the United States are not satisfied with taking our gold and all the gold the rest of the world can spare. Nor are the aforesaid people content with taking our pulp wood and other forms of raw material, which they manufacture and sell to us at highly remunerative prices. They impose a prohibitive duty upon our wheat—the finest wheat grown in the world, as every flour miller and consumer of bread knows—they permit the same wheat to enter the United States under bond, and their millers mix it with inferior native wheat, grind it in bond and ship it to the markets of the world to compete unfairly with the wheat ground into flour in Canadian mills. This process also adds to the mounds of gold stored in the vaults at Washington.

Those practices are not reprehensible from the point of view of the people of the United States, nor from the point of view of the people of Canada either for that matter. They exemplify the business tendencies of the times. We cannot blame the people of the United States for taking advantage of every opportunity afforded them for earning an honest penny in business. But we do not like to think of Uncle Sam laughing heartily in his sleeve at the simplicity of Canadians in permitting so many things "to be put over them."

Now we come to the gravest charge of all against the affluent and acquisitive people of the United States. The last and the gravest charge is that American visitors to the Provincial Museum in Victoria have been stealing the quills off the back of our fretful porcupine. Some of the vandals have been caught in the act, and have pleaded in extenuation of their offences that it is a nice thing to carry off some memento or souvenir of their visit to such an interesting place as Victoria. The consequence is that our stuffed porcupine has been reduced to an appearance of melancholy mangy disrepute. Its back is as destitute of quills as Tam O'Shanter's mare Maggie was of tail after the witch had operated upon her and left "scarce a stump" in the place where the tail used to be.

The disreputable state of our fretful porcupine reminds us of the visit we paid to the fine steamer Princess Marguerite shortly after she arrived in Victoria. The courteous purser of the ship, after showing us everything worth seeing on board with the exception of the engines, called attention to the Indian art decorations in one of the main saloons. Grasping one of the "totems" in his hand, he asked us to make a note of the fact that it was firmly bolted to its base. That, he explained, was a precautionary measure. If that precautionary measure had not been adopted there would not have been a single "totem" left on its base after the ship had made one or two trips. The suggestion was that no movable article is safe when multitudes of tourists are roaming around the world.

However, it is but fair to state that allegations of moral laxity are not only applicable to American tourists. Travellers of all nationalities appear to be subject to moments of moral weakness when movable objects that may serve as souvenirs can be purloined with impunity. Public-spirited owners of attractive private properties who have thrown their premises open for inspection have found out that some sightseers are equipped with light and deft fingers as well as with capacious bags. A few years ago we doubt whether everything possessing any property value displayed in a public place had to be either nailed down or bolted on to prevent it from being carried off as a souvenir. Therefore we fear that moral standards, like many other things, are not what they used to be. But we hope we have made the fact clear that, according to expert testimony, the moral standards of American tourists are not different from the moral standards of Canadian tourists or or tourists of some other nationalities.

Motorists Protest Against Cyclists

Want Police Commission to Enforce Same Rules as Affect Operation of Cars

The proposal to enact a by-law requiring licence plates for bicycles was revived at yesterday afternoon's session of the Police Commission and Chief Fry was instructed to enforce strictly the regulations requiring lights and rear reflectors on bicycles.

A delegation from the Automobile Club of British Columbia waited on the board to complain about the lack of enforcement of regulations governing the conduct of cyclists.

Col. Wilby styled the present situation in which bicyclists were permitted to turn at points other than street intersections, and to proceed without lights, as a serious menace to the safety of human life and limb.

The traffic by-laws were adequate to meet the situation, Col. Wilby declared, but the police were not enforcing them, though he said so with no spirit of disrespect.

Two years ago, Commissioner Staneland declared, the City Council had seen fit to reject the suggestion that all bicycles be licensed. This was the only way to control their owners' actions.

It was agreed that Commissioner Staneland should introduce his suggestion again by resolution at the next meeting of the board, and that the City Council should be approached to enact a licensing by-law for bicycles.

Chief Fry was instructed to enforce the present regulations with rigor.

Mistletoe

Sir,—I was very interested in reading a letter in today's issue of The Colonist by Mr. J. R. Anderson regarding the growing of mistletoe. In addition to this very decorative plant growing on apple trees in European countries as our friend states, I find it also grows in a wild state in the South of England, particularly in Surrey and the South Downs, on blackthorn bushes, having picked it myself on Box Hill, Surrey. It is also known to grow on elm trees in large bunches.

RESURRECTION

(More Janua Vitae)

Summer's roseate dream is shattered,
On the ground the leaves lie scattered,
Rotting into mould.
They are dead that used to hold
Life in all their cells and channels,
Closed now are Nature's annals,
Hushed the psalm of Life.
Frost wind, like a sharp-edged knife
Hilt-deep plunges and depresses
To the earth's unseen recesses.
Whither, whither fled
From the blossom dry and dead
All the glory once imprisoned
In the form becoming wizened
Since it has been robbed
Of the breath of life which throbbed
Through its veins and fibres?—
whither
Fled is that which leaves to wither
Its discarded haunt,
Which Nature, in her quenchless
want,
Gathers to her bosom tender,
There to weave another splendor
From the splendor gone?
In the waking Spring anon,
In a glad rejuvenation
Up shall startle all creation—
Gladness shall be rife!
Flowers spring in glory glowing
From the seeds of their own sowing!
Death is but the gate of life.

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Four jurors were accepted today in the trial of Bernard Papke for the murder of Archibald Murchie, son of a Vancouver, B.C., family, during the holdup of a drugstore where Murchie went to make a purchase on March 4 last. List of Papers "Mysteriously" Disappears did not know the cost of the land clearing?

Mr. Whittaker—I do not think that Premier Oliver would be familiar with the amounts.

Minister Gives Evidence

Hon. Dr. Sutherland was then sworn.

Capt. Mackenzie—When did this matter of over-commitments first come to your attention?

Dr. Sutherland—We called for tenders for some paving at the University Building area in February. When they came in the amount, $114,000, struck me as being exceptionally large, and I took the matter up with Mr. Philip, the Deputy-Minister. I thought that we must be getting close to the limit of the vote, and I asked for a statement from the accountant. I had asked Mr. Wright, of the Comptroller-General's Department, when the House was in session last year, how much money we had left, and he said about one million dollars. From his point of view he was right, because he had account of only the money which had been expended. The tenders for the paving were received February 18, and I learned from the accountant shortly afterwards that if we spent $114,000 for the paving, we would at that time be about $90,000 behind our vote. I spoke to the Premier at that time and suggested that we eliminate the paving for the time being and carry on only the essentials. Sometime later I learned that our over-commitments amounted to $600,000. I left Victoria sometime in June, and when I returned I secured a statement as to how much was authorized and how much was necessary in order to complete the university buildings.

Dr. Sutherland denied that he had ever gone into the accounting end of his department. It was not the practice for either he or his deputy, the chief engineer or assistant engineer to make any direct payments to department engineers in the field or to contractors.

Mr. Pooley—Who does?

Dr. Sutherland—The Chief Accountant, Mr. Hood; or rather, he notified the proper parties that amounts have been authorized.

Mr. Twigg—If the loan was not authorized at all, how can you put any responsibility on the Chief Accountant?

Dr. Sutherland—I do not know whether or not he would be aware that the amount had been passed or not. It is a technical point.

Mr. Pooley—Were you present when the order-in-council was passed last June?

Dr. Sutherland—I can't remember if I was or not. Later on we had Mr. Cole go through the Chief Accountant's Department. He found everything in order.

Reorganization Planned

Capt. Mackenzie—You made a statement yesterday that there was to be some sort of reorganization in the Accounting Department. What is that proposed reorganization?

Dr. Sutherland—We intend to use a system which will co-ordinate the various branches so that it will be impossible for over-commitments to be made without immediate knowledge of them.

Mr. Pooley—When you learned of the situation in February, what did you do?

Dr. Sutherland—I reported the situation to the Finance Department.

Mr. Pooley—Did you report to the Premier?

Dr. Sutherland—I don't remember. I think he was away at the time.

Mr. Pooley—When you found the over-commitments in your department, did you know that a similar situation existed in the Department of Lands?

Dr. Sutherland—I knew that the over-expenditures of the Works Department was not all. That is why I asked for the total.

Mr. Hood interrupted to say that the amounts reported on in February included everything but a small amount spent on surveys.

In reply to Mr. Twigg, who asked if there had been any communication between Dr. Sutherland and the Department of Lands regarding the matter, Dr. Sutherland answered in the negative.

Mr. Pooley—Did you ever hear of a letter dated November 6, 1924, written by the Comptroller of Water Rights to the Minister of Lands?"

Dr. Sutherland again answered no.

Mr. Pooley brought out that on October 29, 1924, expenditures made by the Department of Works had amounted to $2,233,181, and that of the Department of Lands over $700,000, making a total of $3,033,181.

File Mysteriously Disappears

Mr. Albert Cleveland, comptroller of water rights, was then sworn.

He recognized a copy of the letter written by him to the Department of Lands dealing with the Point Grey lands. He could not name the amount of contracts made at that time because his letter lumped sums expended and estimates of what completion of various projects would cost.

Mr. Pooley—Do you know where File 191 Department of Public Works, is?

Mr. Cleveland—No.

Mr. Pooley turned to Mr. Hood: "Do you know?"

Mr. Hood—No. File 191 has mysteriously disappeared. It is checked up to me as the last person using it, or holding responsibility for it, but it is gone.

Mr. Pooley asked if there was any other file missing. Mr. Hood did not know of any other. He had had no reason to hide the file. It contained important letters and documents relating to the University and Government finances.

"Our records in our department are complete," Mr. Hood declared. "I repeat, they are complete. The Deputy Minister was asked yesterday if he knew of these orders-in-council, and he answered no. I have absolutely no authority to prepare an order-in-council, but must secure same from the Minister or the Deputy."

"Government's Finish"

Mr. Kergin—Do you know anything about special warrants for $750,000 or $350,000?

Dr. Sutherland—There was a debate as to whether or not we would ask for a larger sum than we did. Then it was decided to ask for a smaller sum.

Mr. Kergin—There was a reference in The Colonist this morning to the effect that the Lieutenant-Governor had refused to grant warrants asked for. Is that right?

Dr. Sutherland—If he had refused we would not be here. That would have been the Government's finish.

Mr. Pooley—You passed the original order-in-council for $250,000. That document on its face shows that it was originally drawn for a larger sum.

Mr. Twigg—Yes, $950,000 was changed to $250,000.

Mr. Kergin—But that change was not made at the instance of the Lieutenant-Governor?

Dr. Sutherland—No.

The Committee adjourned its hearing until next Monday morning.

Northern Hotel Owner Contributes $400 for Breaking Liquor Act

In the police court yesterday Seth Chamberlain, owner of the Northern Hotel, was charged with an infraction of the Liquor Act and fined $400 by the police magistrate. Sergt. Boulton, of the city police force, testified to finding liquor in various rooms. Some of the rooms were evidently not used as bedrooms but as sitting-rooms.

Richard Wilson, charged also in connection with the violation of the regulations at the same time and place, was fined $50.

Mr. W. C. Moresby, who appeared for the accused and pleaded guilty to the offence, pointed out that his information was that there was no rowdyism allowed about the place. The date was Thanksgiving night and there might be some allowance made for the presence of liquor in the rooms on that occasion.

Mr. Moresby further took exception to the order to confiscate the liquor found there. He held that there was nothing in the Act which gave the Attorney-General power to appoint inspectors or constables to seize liquor and hold it. Power to seize by such officers appeared to be provided for in the Act but their appointment was not provided for.

The magistrate said he considered he should follow the practice that had prevailed and confiscate the liquor taken.

New Altitude Record Set

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The veteran French pilot Lucien Bossoutrot, with a super-Goliath plane, carrying four motors, developing 2,000 horsepower, yesterday broke the world's altitude and duration records for heavier-than-air machines carrying a cargo of 8,818 pounds. He remained in the air two hours and 19 minutes, and reached an altitude of 16,400 feet.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily British Colonist of November 14, 1875)

Mr. S. T. Styles, in a card published today, makes some very pertinent remarks respecting the recent disaster, by which he was robbed of a wife and two children. Steps must be taken that will prevent even the possibility of a recurrence of such terrible tragedies. There is not the slightest doubt that if there was a collision it occurred through the inefficiency of the lookout on the steamer; that if she struck a rock, she was too close to shore; or that if she fell to pieces because her cargo was not properly stowed, in either case the grossest negligence and carelessness are observable.

The Snowstorm—Snow thus early is almost unexampled in this section. Winter has set in really all along the coast. Heavy frost and snow are reported from Portland, Oregon, and snow still falling. While we of the northern latitudes are getting snowed under, the Californians are being shaken up.

Low Glass—Last night the glass fell to 28.46, the lowest known since Vancouver Island was settled by the whites. This low stage indicated high winds or a heavy snowfall.

Fifteen Years Is Term of Exemption

Elevator of Mr. Valentine Quinn Expected to Be Free of Taxation for That Period

In reporting to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce the situation relative to the elevator which Mr. Valentine Quinn proposed to erect here, the president yesterday introduced the subject of exemption from taxes by the city on the undertaking.

Mayor Pendray said that in the first instance when this matter came before him a fifteen-year term was suggested as sufficient. Others pointed out that this was the exemption period with which Mr. Quinn expressed his agreement, and it was felt that it was long enough in view of the fact that the elevator he proposed to erect was not to be as large as that of the Panama-Pacific.

It was announced that Mr. Quinn was on his way to England to make final arrangements for the financing of the scheme and that matters connected with the carrying out of the enterprise were practically all arranged, with the exception of the city exemption.

It was suggested that Mr. Quinn should be communicated with in order that there would be no misunderstanding in the matter and so that he would understand before formally closing up in London that the city would likely be agreeable to a fifteen-year term of exemption from taxes.

Vacant Houses Are Prey for Street Gangs

Serious Complaint Is Voiced by Real Estate Board, Delegation Quoting Number of Cases of Damage

Vandalism Serious, Commission Is Told

Empty houses are being robbed of baths and fixtures in wholesale fashion and are being brought to the verge of total demolition by gangs of robbers and hoodlums, a delegation from the Victoria Real Estate Board charged at yesterday afternoon's meeting of the police commission.

Chief Fry was instructed to concentrate all the energies of the police force on the suppression of the robbery and vandalism at the close of a sensational session.

"We have brought this matter to the attention of the police many times," said Mr. Fred Landsberg, "but instead of diminishing, the robbery and destruction is increasing."

At one time, he said, the police used to inform realty agents whenever houses on their beats were seen to have suffered damage. But this was no longer being done.

Some Illustrations

Recently two big plate glass windows had been broken on View Street. A few days ago another one had been broken at the dye works. Then a fourth expensive window had been shattered. And nothing had been done; the culprits had not yet been apprehended, though the Esquimalt and Oak Bay police were able to cope with such vandalism.

At 1715 Market Street the fences were broken down, the veranda torn away, the doors, lead-piping and fixtures stolen, and every window in the house shattered. The bath had been disconnected and was ready to be carted away when he had inspected the house, Mr. Landsberg said.

The house had formerly rented for about $15 a month. It had been idle for about six months, and:

"Now it looks like a pig-sty," said Mr. Landsberg.

The police should be trained to do their duty of protecting public property. They just went along on their bicycles and paid no attention to damage to property, he alleged.

Defacing Voters' Lists

Two hours after the voters' list had been affixed to a post at the corner of Menzies and Niagara Streets, boys had torn every sheet away. A policeman had come along and had done nothing about it.

Damage to empty houses was rife in the city. Everywhere dwellings were being destroyed.

Mr. F. B. Pemberton declared that the looting of houses must be the work of an organized gang operating in daylight with a plumber's wagon. The police should devote more attention to stopping the outlawry. They were a splendid body of men, working under a splendid chief. But they might well devote less attention to finding lightless motor cars and raiding Chinese gambling joints and give more to the protection of property.

More Discipline

Mr. R. H. Shanks declared that the children were the main cause of the trouble. Parents should exercise a more rigid discipline. He pointed out that owners were prone to let their property revert to the city for unpaid taxes on finding their houses in a dilapidated condition as a result of the depredations of boys and hoodlums.

Mr. Pemberton suggested that school teachers should lecture their classes on the evils of the vandalism in question.

Damage at High School

The trouble was that the damage was being done by youths of sixteen and seventeen, remarked Commissioner Staneland. Last week $60 worth of window panes had been broken at the Victoria High School, though the police had had a man stationed there. Apparently boys stood at a distance from the building and shot stones from catapults at the windows. The trouble was that one could not tell from which direction the stones came flying.

Twelve small children had been arrested in a clubroom they had established in an empty house recently, Mr. Landsberg complained. These boys had used the place for popping popcorn and smoking. But they had not been punished by the court. Next week a house in the very next street had suffered some hundreds of dollars worth of damage.

"We will have to concentrate on cleaning up these gangs once and for all," declared Commissioner Staneland, "and stay right with it until we do."

"There has been so much talking going on and so much in the press about stool-pigeons that parents are telling their children not to give information to the police," Chief Fry declared.

The commissioners scouted the chief's suggestion.

"That's right," Chief Fry affirmed, stoutly.

Chief Fry told the commissioners that real estate agents often did not visit houses in their charge during periods of many months. He maintained that the police were doing their part. He had asked realty firms to furnish him with lists of their vacant houses. About two had complied, but had ceased to furnish the lists altogether after a while.

"AN OBSTINATE INDIGESTION had opened the scene; nervous depression followed; a skin eruption appeared on top of all. General troubles require general remedies: good yeast has a bracing and purifying effect on the whole body; therefore I began taking, scrupulously before each meal, one of the dainty cubes put up by the Fleischmann Company. The symptoms of disease disappeared, one by one, inversely as they had come; first the eruption, then the depression, lastly the digestive troubles. In a fortnight, I was enjoying life again; still to enjoy it better, even now I stick to my three cubes a day."

Christian Mauroner, New York City

"YEAST HAS SAVED ME from indigestion lasting sixteen years. Sickness or dizziness kept me inactive. Recently attacks increased. I was rarely free from pain more than two or three days. I started eating Fleischmann's Yeast eight months ago. I regret I did not try it ten years ago when a New York specialist recommended it for indigestion to a friend. My trouble has disappeared; I now eat anything. I even went motor camping this summer and climbed to the top of Mt. Washington."

Mrs. W. Bosse Lord, Providence, R. I.

Health—What Does It Mean to You?

"I WAS A CHRONIC SUFFERER from constipation and a slave to cathartics for years. A cousin who had been informed by a specialist in Germany that it was the real treatment for his case, induced me to use Fleischmann's Yeast. I now have no more headaches. My body is all cleared up from pimples and all other eruptions of the skin. That dull, hazy and dizzy feeling that used to pass over me several times a day and ruin my life, efficiency, and disposition, has entirely left me."

M. A. Zeff, Electra, Texas

EAT TWO OR THREE CAKES A DAY regularly before meals: on crackers—in fruit juices or milk—or just plain. For constipation especially, dissolve one cake in hot water (not scalding) before breakfast and at bed-time.

FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST IS MADE IN CANADA

Vigor? Personality? Charm? . . . Read how thousands have found all these—and more—through one simple fresh food

NOT a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense—Fleischmann's Yeast is simply a remarkable fresh food.

The millions of tiny active yeast plants in every cake invigorate the whole system. They aid digestion—clear the skin—banish the poisons of constipation. Where cathartics give only temporary relief, yeast strengthens the intestinal muscles and makes them healthy and active. And day by day it releases new stores of energy.

Buy several cakes at a time—they will keep fresh in a cool dry place for two or three days. All grocers have Fleischmann's Yeast. Start eating it today!

And let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Health Research Dept. 321, The Fleischmann Company, 1166 Burrard St., Vancouver, B. C.

"ABOUT SIX MONTHS AGO I suffered considerably from headache—almost daily. I was also nervous. My work as a railroad agent and telegraph operator requires quick and accurate service. I seemed to be always making mistakes, and was always cranky to my customers as well as to my family (before taking yeast). I had seen about the remarkable results of Fleischmann's Yeast—so I tried it. The result is that I feel as happy as I did on my wedding day. My complexion is fine—and I am enjoying life."

Chamber of Commerce Rejoices Over Removal of Island Lumber Arbirtray

The removal of the lumber arbitrary affecting shipments from Vancouver Island, as compared with those from Mainland points, was described at the meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce as one of the most important announcements affecting trade that had been received in the city for years. It was the culmination of about twenty years' continuous agitation. The correspondence was read by the president of the Chamber at yesterday's noonday meeting.

When the Great Northern Railway had granted the concession to Chemainus, Sidney and Genoa Bay, but not including Victoria, owing to the fact that the company did not have traffic connections with this city, Mr. C. P. W. Schwengers had sent a message to Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, vice-president of the C.N.R., who had replied that that company was removing the arbitrary. There had been some little doubt in the message as to whether Victoria was included, but this had been set at rest by another message from Mr. Dalrymple which said "Yes, Victoria is included."

Mr. Schwengers had sent a reply thanking Mr. Dalrymple and the company for what had been done in this matter. He said he felt that the order, while it applied only to Eastern shipments, afforded the opportunity for the lumbermen to press for it to cover shipments to Prairie points as well.

General gratification was expressed at the result of the move for placing the lumber shipments from the Island on an equality with the Mainland shipments.

Labor Enters Civic Contest

Two Candidates for Alderman, One for School Trustee, Named at Meeting

Messrs. F. A. Graham and W. H. Sargent were nominated for the aldermanic race and Mr. M. D. Wellburn for the school trustee contest at last night's meeting of Labor bodies held at the Green Block under the auspices of the Canadian Labor Party.

The meeting decided to enter no candidate for police commissioner.

Committees were named to approach other well-known Labor men in an effort to induce them to enter the municipal election field.

Many people were at last night's meeting and the attendance was interpreted as significant of the growing interest Labor is taking in the political things that affect its welfare.

Mr. Graham was nominated by Alderman Woodward. He was a candidate for council honors last year, when he was defeated by a small margin. Mr. Sargent, who is not to be confused with ex-Alderman Sargent, was also a candidate for an aldermanic post last year.

The Trades and Labor Council, it was stated on good authority last night, will not nominate candidates of its own, but will endorse the candidatures of those who will work in sympathy with its aims.

Night School Classes—The attendance at the cartooning and shorthand classes at the night school being held at the Victoria High School, are so large that an additional instructor was appointed for each at the meeting of the Victoria School Board last evening.

S.P.C.A. Meeting—The annual meeting of the S.P.C.A. is being arranged for November 24.

Indian Agent Here—Mr. W. Scott Simpson, Indian Agent at Telegraph Creek, was a visitor to the city from his Northern post on Thursday.

Vote of Appreciation—A vote of appreciation for his splendid work on the High School War Memorial was tendered Mr. Earl J. Clarke at the meeting of the Victoria School Board last night.

Two Fined in Oak Bay—Convicted of driving past a standing street car, R. P. Murphy was yesterday fined $10 in the Oak Bay police court. Percy Ridgway Wilson was fined $15 for having driven to the common danger.

Goes to Orient—Mr. T. R. Percy, General Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Hong Kong, went out from Victoria on Thursday evening to his post, on board the liner Empress of Asia. Mrs. Percy accompanied him.

Started Too Early—Chee Chow, a Chinese laundryman, was fined $15 and $2.50 costs in police court yesterday for having operated his place within the hours prescribed under the regulations. He had been at work with his employees about 5 o'clock in the morning.

Within Estimates—The reports submitted by the finance committee at last night's meeting of the Victoria School Board showed that the expenditures for ten months are within the estimates. To date $381,449.40 has been expended, and the year's estimated total is $473,963.

Leaves for East—It is expected that Mr. D. C. Coleman, Vice-President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has been paying a brief visit to the Coast, will leave for Winnipeg today from Vancouver. He left Victoria on Thursday, and stayed over on the Mainland yesterday to transact business.

Cathedral Services—The concluding services in connection with the mission being conducted by the Rev. W. W. Craig in Christ Church Cathedral will be held tomorrow. Holy Communion services will be held at 6 a.m., 8 a.m. and after Matins. The missioner will preach at the 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. services.

Action Dismissed—Judge Lampman has handed down judgment in the case of Kater vs. Noller, tried before him some time ago. The plaintiff, a returned soldier, had purchased land on the Panama Flats near the city, intending it for fruit lands. It was held that it was unsuitable in view of the fact that the land flooded at seasons. The action was for recession of the agreement and a return of the moneys paid. His Honor, however, dismissed the action, feeling that there was no fraud practised.

Large Family Comes Here—Mrs. G. F. Randall, of Baring, Sask., and her nine young children have arrived here to make their future home in this city. The party, including seven boys and two girls, all ranging in age from one month to thirteen years, is accompanied by Mr. R. Randall, prosperous pioneer homesteader of the Baring district, and grandfather of the children. Mr. Randall, Sr., himself the father of nine children, brought his family out from Kent, England, eighteen years ago and has made a success of farming on the prairie. His son, who is at present Grain Inspector at the Baring elevator, will join his young family next March here.

Committee Reports—Mr. A. R. Wolfenden, chairman of the special joint committee representing the Real Estate Board and the Chamber of Commerce, reported to the directors of the latter body yesterday upon the results of the conference with the Premier and other members of the Government on the subject of succession duty legislation. He said there was little to tell them outside of what had been reported. The Government had given no assurance that it would favor the abolition of the succession duty. Certain minor changes would be made, but the tax would remain. The report was received and the committee will continue to carry on its work.

Water Applications Will Be Considered On Wednesday Next

THE various applications on the water situation on the southern end of Vancouver Island, which have been presented to the Provincial Legislature, will be considered next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock by the Private Bills Committee of the House, Reeve Robert Macnicol of Saanich told members of Saanich Council at its meeting last night.

bers who did not attend, or contribute to the funds.

Asked if he knew that it had been stated in evidence that the purging of the roll had been commenced and never completed, witness declared that it had been completed at a meeting called for the purpose when the names were struck off by order of the session. He remembered four who attended the meeting in question. They were Messrs. J. Murray, A. F. Fraser, Mr. Neil Smith (since deceased), and himself. He said Mr. Fraser had admitted being present. Mr. N. Smith had said he remembered the incident; Mr. Murray would be there because as clerk he missed no meetings, and he (witness) was also present.

His lordship asked counsel if he were trying to establish in his cross-examination of witness that the disputed meeting did not take place. "Exactly, my lord," replied Mr. J. B. Clearihue. "There is no minute of the meeting."

A Serious Charge

His lordship stated that perjury was a serious charge, and it was unreasonable to assume a minister of the gospel would perjure himself without some powerful motive. It was unfair to attach such an assumption to a clergyman's good name without a concrete reason.

Mr. Clearihue assured the court that that was not his motive in trying to establish that the meeting did not take place. Witness said he had not preached against church union before the vote was taken, but he would not permit union ministers to occupy his pulpit, other than the Rev. E. G. Taylor, who was a member of the session of St. Andrew's Church.

Other witnesses called by the defence were Alex. Rowan and A. Fraser, members of the session for many years, who testified to the effect that a meeting took place in January, 1923, when the purging of the communion roll was completed and the names struck off. The prosecution is endeavoring to prove that the meeting was called for the purpose of purging the roll, but the work was too lengthy for one night and the meeting adjourning to the call of the chair it was never called. Therefore the purging of the communion roll was, they allege, never completed by resolution of the session, according to the constitution of the church.

The members whose names were struck off the list and not permitted to vote on church union should have been allowed to do so, unionists declared, and these members' votes, they alleged, would have materially affected the final result.

Expert Testimony

Rev. Dr. Clay, of St. Andrew's Church, Victoria, also gave evidence as an authority on the laws of the courts of the church.

Other witnesses were Dr. T. W. Taylor, doctor of philosophy, who gave expert evidence as to members' legal rights, and Rev. Robert L. Douglas.

Mr. J. A. Murray was recalled as a witness and read a paragraph from a local paper under the heading of "Church Notes," showing that January 19 last repairs were being made to the church hall. He said on that account no session meeting had been held that week.

A minute book of the Young People's Society was produced by the defence and extracts from the minutes of January 18 were read, and showed that Mr. Lister had given an interesting address to the young folks on that night, although somewhat disturbed by the workmen who were repairing the building.

Mr. Murray then told the court that he could not have been at the meeting of the session on the night as stated in evidence by witnesses for the anti-unionists, nor could there have been a meeting of the session in that room on that evening.

The Vote on Union

Dr. W. H. Smith, of Westminster Hall, Vancouver, gave evidence on Thursday to the effect that the protest made by the Nanaimo Union members, claiming that the vote had been irregular, had been upheld by the B.C. Synod when appealed from the decision of the Presbytery, and elders and Nanaimo members who had been expelled, were re-instated by this decision of the Synod. He gave evidence on procedure in such cases.

J. A. Murray, clerk of the session, of St. Andrew's Church in 1924, told the court as a witness, of having a requisition for the vote on Church Union, and with Mr. Lister, was delegated by the session to prepare the list. He explained the method employed in doing the work. Mr. Lister would call the names from the communion roll, and he would check them off on the list. He checked the names on the roll later while Mr. Lister used the list. Witness was of the opinion that the appendix list, which was started at a meeting called for the purpose of considering the names of persons who had not taken communion for a lengthy period, or who had left town, had not been actually completed. The work was temporary abandoned to be resumed at a future meeting, which did not take place.

He thought there were certain irregularities in connection with the ballot taken on Church Union, and instanced a case when an old woman had been met by two anti-unionists when she came to vote. The anti-unionists followed her into the booth and told her how to mark the ballot. Witness said the ballot was deposited and counted.

Miss E. Waugh said she had been a member for thirteen years and had received communion cards up to the time of voting. Her name was struck off contrary to her wishes. She had attended regularly up to 1923.

Mr. H. McRae stated he had been a member for twenty-three years and had taken communion up to 1925. He attended fairly regularly. He had gone to the polls with the object of voting and when he asked for his ballot he was told he had no vote. He was greatly incensed over the affair, because several citizens witnessed the refusal, and, believing his reputation was at stake decided to find out why he had been refused. With Mr. Coburn and Mrs. Brown he had gone to the manse, and Mr. Coburn had acted as spokesman, and after explaining the object of their mission, Mr. Lister had refused to let them see the communion roll and had slammed the door on them. Witness had since joined the United Church of Canada.

Mr. Coburn's Evidence

Mr. J. W. Coburn was called, and stated he had been a member of the session for twenty-five years up to June, 1925, since which time he did not exactly know his legal status. He said he understood that before names could be removed from the communion roll, it required a resolution from the session instructing the clerk to remove them. When a minister gave a certificate of disjunction, the said minister should report it to the session, and it would be notated in the minutes. He did not think the moderator of the church could strike off any member's name without consent of the session. Witness was of the opinion that when a communion list was purged, the names had to be considered by the session, and each person visited by the minister before the names could be struck off. He said when the session had held a meeting to consider the voters' list they had appointed Mr. Murray with Mr. Lister to prepare the list, not because they were members of different sides, but because they had confidence that Mr. Lister would lead them aright and that Mr. Murray was also dependable. When the list was presented by Mr. Murray and Mr. Lister, the session had passed it without question. Witness thought the list was completed for the benefit of scrutineers and voters. Witness stated he had been expelled by Mr. Lister along with other Union members.

Mrs. William Logan testified that she and her husband were members of St. Andrew's Church since 1915, and that after hearing that names were being removed from the roll she had got in touch with Rev. D. Lister, who told her that her name had been removed for non-attendance, and she did not go to vote.

Removed Without Knowledge

Mrs. William Grieve and Miss Miller were called and stated that their names had been removed without their knowledge.

Mrs. Brown swore that she had been a member of the church since January, 1925. Her husband, Mr. A. C. Brown, said he had joined the church in 1921 and had received communion cards. He had never received a word of his being struck off the list of voters.

Llewellyn Williams swore he had joined the church twenty-five years ago. He had sung in the choir, and had never received word he had been struck off the roll of voters, and always though he was a member. Mrs. Williams' name was also struck off the list.

Mr. A. Stover swore he had joined the church in 1920. He said he was a member of the session, and was a scrutineer at the time votes or voters' names were submitted. He had seen Mr. Henderson regarding his voting qualifications, and had understood that the latter would vote for the Union. He had told Mr. Henderson he was not on the list. As a result of this, he (Mr. Henderson) had not come up to vote. Witness had seen Mr. Murray refuse Mrs. Shaw a vote.

Mr. Taylor's Opinion

Mr. E. G. Taylor swore that he had been a member of the session for the past twenty years. He had been present at a meeting on October 23, 1923, when the session went over a list of names. None were struck off. It had been the intention of the meeting to strike off any names which should be struck off. Witness had no recollection of a meeting in January, 1924, when some names were struck off. Witness recalled the meeting when sixteen names were added to the list. "Letters had been sent in from the sixteen people protesting against their names being left off the voting list. He considered they were eligible from the discussion which was raised in the session," added the witness.

Mrs. E. V. Henderson swore that she had joined the church six years ago. She had always believed she was a member until she had heard her name had been struck off the list. She had been told by her husband, who had made inquiries on her behalf.

Minister's Evidence

Rev. D. Lister took the stand for the defence. He swore that he had been pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Nanaimo, since 1921. A communion roll had been purged in 1921, when it was decided who were in good standing. There had been a mark against those who were not in good standing at the time, said witness. No notice was then given them as regards their standing, said witness, in reply to a question from the court. In 1921 there had been ninety-two names struck off the membership list, and others added, said witness. It was the duty of witness, the latter said, in reply to a query from His Lordship, to make an annual report to the General Assembly regarding names added or struck off the membership, and this, said witness, he had done. On October 23, 1923, the roll had been purged again, swore witness. On that occasion the roll had been gone over and a mark placed against the name of a person who might be considered doubtful. This mark was placed by Mr. Murray, clerk, swore witness, and by this it was understood that the name of such person was definitely removed from the voting list. There had been another meeting on January 13, when Smith, Murray, Fraser, witness and possibly another had been present. At this meeting, said witness, they had put a mark against the names of the persons who were not members in their opinion. Asked by the Court who had made the marks, witness said it had been himself; he did not really know why, but he had done so. It was usually the work of the clerk but on this occasion he had done it—it had been done just as the work came up.

Mr. J. B. Clerihue is appearing for the plaintiffs, and Mr. F. S. Cunliffe for Trustees Drysdale, Coburn, Warwick and Murray, while Mr. J. H. Lawson, of Vancouver, is representing Mr. Lister.

Police Possess No Power to Stop Klan

The police have no power to interrupt the projected formation here of a Ku Klux Klan society, Chief Fry told the board of police commissioners yesterday afternoon.

"As far as we can find out, the aims and articles of the society are not contrary to law. Of course, if they break the law they'll have to brought to justice," he declared.

There had been 1,500 people at a recent Ku Klux meeting at Vancouver, Chief Fry told the commissioners.

Mayor Pendray asked the chief to keep an eye on the activities of future klansmen and to report to the board.

City May Have Only One Representative at Winnipeg Conference

It is questionable whether the City of Victoria will be represented at the National Conference of Boards of Boards of Trade that meets in Winnipeg next week by anyone from the City Council or the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. O. Hollingsworth, who is on the Prairies representing the Publicity Bureau, will be in attendance and will act for the city.

Mayor Pendray announced to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday that he would not be able to leave at this time with the city's bills before the Legislature requiring watching, and he also asked that the Chamber relieve Mr. C. W. P. Schwengers, the president, from the duty of attending as he considered he also would be of value to the city in this connection just at present. Mr. Schwengers felt it was important he should remain in Victoria just now with questions like the lumber arbitrary up for consideration.

It was argued that the Chamber should have a representative there if possible and the president was empowered to name a delegate if he could find a member who would undertake the task.

The Screen

Capitol—"The Knockout," starring Milton Sills.

Columbia—Fred Thomson in "The Wild Bull's Lair."

Dominion—Mae Murray in "The Merry Widow."

The Stage

Coliseum—"The Boy."

Playhouse—"Bringing Up Mother."

DOMINION THEATRE Mae Murray, the fascinating screen actress who appears in the title role of "The Merry Widow," now showing for the last time today at the Dominion Theatre, gets as much enjoyment from a trip to her dressmakers or from a shopping tour as other women derive from social gatherings, golf, club affairs, music or busines. Miss Murray need be in a city only a few days in order to learn where to obtain the best hats, shoes, furs, lingerie and hosiery. She never entrusts another with her shopping, and it is probably because of this that she is known as one of the best dressed women on the screen.

CAPITOL THEATRE Milton Sills, Director Lambert Hillyer, and all the members of the First National company who worked in the wilds of Canada filming scenes in "The Knockout," now showing at the Capitol Theatre, are predicting a great movie future for John Philip Kolb, the New York truck driver who was snatched from his wheel and given an important role in the picture.

COLUMBIA THEATRE Those two picture personages who co-star in screen life and are pals in private, Fred Thomson and his great horse, Silver King, appear for the last time today on the screen of the Columbia Theatre in their latest F.B.O. production, "The Wild Bull's Lair." The story is unusual in the extreme. There is mystery, melodrama, and an element of the supernatural in the last Thomson vehicle; and incidentally there is certainly an element of the superhatural in Thomson's ability to conquer a huge bull, vicious and infuriated to the point of madness. Close-ups show this spectacular fight, and they prove that no double is used.

COLISEUM THEATRE Tonight, for the last time the Coliseum presents its big dual attraction which has packed the theatre all the week, "The Boy" on the boards, and "On the Stroke of Three" on the screen, the first of the big series of pictures which have been booked for the Winter. "The Boy," with George Olsen and Will Marshall leading the comedy, is undoubtedly one of the greatest plays the company has staged, and they have presented many successes. The picture is one that is bound to prove popular.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE Rose Dione plays the part of a fashionable modiste in "Fifth Avenue Models," Universal-Jewel, in which Miss Philbin is starred, and which is now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. The picture was adapted from "The Best in Life," a literary sensation, written by Muriel Hine. It is the story of the tragedies that came into the life of a poor girl by reason of her love for a young millionaire.

Great Musical Success Of Decade Comes to Royal on Thursday

The playgoers of this city, it is claimed, should be grateful to the Messrs. Shubert for the presentation of so exquisite a musical offering as "Blossom Time," which is booked at the Royal Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee, under the direction of the Messrs. Shubert. "Blossom Time" is one of the great musical successes of the decade. It has been on view at the Ambassador Theatre, New York, for two years. This operetta, with Franz Schubert music, is undoubtedly one of the most delightful musical entertainments of the kind ever staged. With a score consisting entirely of the famous composer's loveliest melodies, which are delicately woven into a story of Schubert's life, it represents the most distinguished musical production of the past few years.

Competition of Germany Aids Coal Problem

Miss Irene Ward, English Visitor, Addresses Women's Canadian Club, Giving Reasons for Situation

Increased Production Cost

In an exceptionally able and eloquently delivered address before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday, Miss Irene Ward, an English visitor, dealt with some phases of the economic situation in the Old Land at the present time, particularly that phase of it which arises from the coal industry. Her argument was that the tremendous cost of production in England, and the competition in the foreign market of cheaply-produced German coal, were responsible for the present crisis.

Cost of Production

It was stated by the speaker that seventy-two per cent of the cost of producing coal in England was devoted to wages. And of the remaining twenty-eight per cent, a large proportion went to operating costs. Strict examination into the accounts of the thirteen districts into which the coal industry had been divided for the purposes of examination failed to reveal any avenue through which any exorbitant profit could drift into the owners' pockets.

The case of the employee was equally defended. Miss Ward recalled the splendid spirit shown by the miners in the late war. So enthusiastically had they volunteered, that the Government had finally had to step in and stop recruiting lest there should not be sufficient men left to operate the coal mines. And whereas their wages had risen until today they were getting from £3 to £5 a week, yet it was also true that the cost of living had advanced considerably.

The real significance of this argument was further revealed when Miss Ward stated that the closing of 580 pits during the last two years or so had involved 110,000 miners, thus adding to England's unemployment problem, a problem which was aggravated still more by the dearth of shipbuilding and the curtailment of the iron and steel industries.

Competition's Effect

New problems had arisen since in the competition of Germany's reparation coal in the French and Italian markets. This competition from Germany was one of the things which had hit England hardest; not only competition in the foreign coal market, but competition in steel.

The Dole

Miss Ward, while deploring the possible evils of the dole, at the same time showed it to have been absolutely essential in its beginnings.

Through the president, Miss Agnew, the meeting, which was at the Empress Hotel, accorded the speaker an enthusiastic vote of thanks.

Miss Marjorie Broley was the soloist for the afternoon.

Warned Against Robinson Evidence

Mr. Justice Morrison inquired whether the jury wished more instructions on the counts on which they disagreed, and pointed out that he was there to assist them.

After conferring with other jurors, the foreman explained that they desired instructions on these counts and would also like the court to discuss the evidence of Verity W. Norton.

His Lordship told the jury that they must not convict on the evidence of Norton unless it was well corroborated, because Norton was an accomplice. He said that Norton and William Robinson, and Oscar B. V. Robinson, supported the crown's case, and he asked the jury whether they could believe young Robinson.

The court had previously pointed out that the elder Robinson was discredited by Crown and defence counsel and should not be believed.

Mr. Craig requested the court to instruct the jury on the law pertaining to aiding and abetting in the commission of a crime.

Turning to the jury, Mr. Justice Morrison asked whether they had heard sufficient of that subject, and when the jury made no response, His Lordship said:

"Mr. Craig, apparently they do not want to hear me on the law."

The jury retired and returned at 4:55 o'clock with a verdict of not guilty on the last two counts.

For one hour and one minute Mr. Justice Morrison charged the jury.

The Crown prosecutor addressed the jury forty-five minutes. He asked them to consider that Commissioner McDonald and Chief Murdoch were negotiating with the Attorney-General's Department for the payment of a reward for the return of Wong, when all the time they knew where Wong was incarcerated.

Stuart Henderson, on behalf of the accused, spoke for over an hour.

The trial opened on Wednesday and occupied three days.

The trial was featured by the unusual procedure of Mr. Craig calling Oscar B. V. Robinson as a Crown witness and, before he testified, telling the jury that he would not convict a dog on his evidence.

Attorney-General on Stand

Startling testimony of Commissioner McDonald of a conversation with Hon. A. M. Manson caused the latter, accompanied by his deputy, W. D. Carter, K.C., to take the witness stand and give denials in the closing hours of the trial this morning.

Commissioner McDonald's testimony that Mr. Manson, in a conversation in Victoria on April 30, had said: "I am in a very peculiar position. I have to stand on one side and Harry Senkler on the other," and "What about this fellow anyway? Does he want money?" and "Now, go to Vancouver and forget that you ever saw me in Victoria," was denied by both Mr. Manson and Mr. Carter.

Taking the witness stand at 10:52 o'clock, Mr. Manson, in answer to Prosecutor C. W. Craig, K.C., testified he recalled a conversation with Commissioner McDonald towards the end of April. The Attorney-General said Mr. Carter had come in at the beginning of the conversation, after he, Mr. Manson, had telephoned for him.

"Mr. McDonald opened up the subject of the abduction," testified Mr. Manson, "and in substance he had something to say—I can't say exactly—with regard to recovering the Chinaman. I told him we wanted the Chinaman and were prepared to offer a reward for his recovery. I had no idea where he was. I had a suspicion against Robinson, Mr. McDonald said something. He left the impression he was going to say something regarding the abduction.

Would Not Listen in Confidence

"Possibly to speak in confidence," went on the Attorney-General.

Witness said he had then left McDonald and held a discussion with Mr. Carter in an adjoining room.

"On my return I told him he was speaking to the Attorney-General," said the witness, "and the Attorney-General could not hear a matter like that in confidence.

"Robinson's name was not mentioned, nor Mr. Senkler's, and I did not know Mr. McDonald knew where the Chinaman was," said the witness. "He certainly did not intimate that to us."

Mr. Carter testified that he said to Commissioner McDonald: "Have you any idea where the Chinaman is?" and that McDonald answered: "In confidence I will tell you."

Mr. Manson stopped Commissioner McDonald at this point, said the witness, and the Attorney-General and deputy retired to an adjoining room to confer.

On Mr. Manson's return the Attorney-General said to McDonald, said Mr. Carter: "Anything you say in this matter we can't treat as confidential."

"We got to discussing the amount of the reward," resumed the witness, "but my recollection is Mr. Manson told him he had better discuss the whole matter of the reward with Mr. Jackson."

Robinson's name was not mentioned, nor that of Harry Senkler, said the witness. No other name was mentioned during the conversation.

He said McDonald had not disclosed where the Chinaman was.

Mr. Craig stated the jury had asked for the name which had been written by Norton on a piece of paper. The name, according to Norton, was that of a man who visited the 25th Avenue house during Wong's incarceration.

"I don't see why he didn't mention the name," said Mr. Justice Morrison. "The name was Mr. Kirkham, one of the prisoners."

TORONTO, Nov. 13.—Donald R. McKenzie, aged fifty-one, chief cashier in the Provincial Treasurer's office and one time prominent athlete, is dead.

Bubbles:

IT IS THE TASK OF EVERY MAN to provide a competence for himself and his family—it is his dream to win financial independence.

It is upon this laudable ambition of man that the get-rich-quick schemer preys. Year after year he trades upon the small investor's inexperience. Wild are his claims—alluring the promises he makes—tragic the disillusionment and loss.

Take no chances;

There is one form of investment which wide experience has proven safe—which is guarded by every precaution which man can take—and which affords not only a dividend on your investment, but absolute protection for your family in the event of your being taken from them.

Shipment of Beautiful Coats Arrives at Mallek's as Well as the New Jumper Dresses—Must We Kiss the Mistletoe Good-Bye?—Treasures at Lee Dye's—What Happened "When We Were Very Young"

Not for many years has the coat reached such a pitch of beauty and distinction as it has this season, and not for a great length of time has such an aggregation of distinctive and beautiful coats arrived in this city as that which has just come to Mallek's.

In these coats the very newest cloths and furs are combined with styles upon which the seal of approval has been set by the great designers of the fashionable world, while the better-known materials that have stood the test of time are represented in the highest possible quality.

I tried on a most luxurious affair of sombre pansy needlepoint, with a heavy collar rolling to the hem and deep bandings of the new and lovely orchid wolf. Another of needlepoint of the same color had rich embellishments of silky, plucked kit fox of iron grey. A cracklehead blue coat trimmed with platinum fox is a study in shadow coloring. This shade of blue is so popular in the United States that the demand greatly exceeds the supply, and certain houses have even been instructed not to display it for that reason.

Newest of the new is the "Queen Anne" collar, which is beautifully expressed in downy-deep chinchilla, standing high at the back of the neck and rolling in a long, graceful sweep to the hem of a slightly flaring coat of black French duvetyn.

So much for the jeune femme; but for the matron provision has been made, also, in a beautiful coat of flatteringly slim lines, carried out in black broadtail, with a tapering shawl collar of skunk.

Evening and afternoon dresses, too, have come in a shimmering crowd to Mallek's. Revolution continues, and the latest manifestation of it is the jumper effect, which has established its claim with rapidity, and, once here, will take a long time to depose, for its jauntiness is just what is required to prevent the flapper from turning into a grande dame in appearance, with styles as they are today.

The favorite medium of this belle mode is black satin, jumper brightly embroidered or banded with metallic cloth, and skirt plain with inverted pleats. Evening dresses are given the jumper effect by means of fur or embroidered bandings, but even in such a case as this they still prefer the flare, which, coming just below the straight line at the hips, gives a rippling swirl which is adorable on a slim figure.

• • • • •

The dresses of shaded georgette reminded me of the delightful clothes a dryad is supposed to wear, especially one of forest green, shading through moss brown to the amber color of sunlight on brown sand, and another with shoulders of turquoise, drifting into moss and then flaring into dark green.

• • • • •

What is this I have been hearing? Can it be true that the authorities have decided that mistletoe is a pest, and must be exterminated? That is just like authorities, isn't it, to spoil all the fun just for the sake of being authoritative. I understand that proceedings have already been begun, and that in ten years' time the picturesque excuse for a Christmas salutation will be completely stamped out by scientific means. It is a tragedy, of course; but all we can do is to bear it with fortitude, and remember that we still have ten years' worth of mistletoe—all of which brings me to the eternal question of Christmas.

• • • • •

Of course, I know that it only comes once a year, but the point in question is that this year's share of it is almost due; and there are Christmas presents to buy whatever happens, and very little wherewithal to buy them. So it is that the wise shopper will shop while sales are plentiful, and the very wise one will begin at Lee Dye's shop, on View Street.

The only difficulty in choosing a gift there will be in the wide range to choose from. Prices just now are absurdly low during the huge sale for clearance and replenishment, as is the annual custom of the firm. The pigskin trunks are the most novel and attractive things of their kind I have seen for a long time. They are strongly made of wood, covered with pigskin painted all over with picturesque Chinese designs, and they range in size from small glove caskets to trunks three by two feet, and suitable for keeping furs.

There are treasures in Lee Dye's shop which, until fifteen years ago, were never allowed to be seen outside the Imperial palaces of China, such as the Mandarin lanterns of carved wood inset with panels of painted silk, the Mandarin costumes, and the exquisite square cloths of beautiful bright silks weightily and gorgeously embroidered with gold—cloths which, used on a bridge or mah jong table, are worthy of the most perfect accessories, such as the carved ash trays of old lacquer, which are procurable there, cigarette cases of beaten brass or silver, and sweetmeat bowls of ivory or jade. Or again, they might be spread upon low tables of carved ebony, such as Lee Dye sells in great quantity, and upon them might be served the fragrant tea of China in little cups of eggshell porcelain.

Wandering about there, yesterday, I saw great cartons of "O-Long" tea, in little cube-shaped paper packages marked all over with Chinese characters, and standing near to packets of dry ginger and jars of ginger floating in thick syrup.

Lee Dye's is the only place where I have been able to find loose peacock feathers, and they have also beautiful, full-feathered peacock fans. I did not know until yesterday, when Mr. Lee Dye told me, that chess is a game of Chinese origin. I saw some fascinating Chinese chessmen, the white ones of ivory, and, instead of black ones, men of red lacquer.

• • • • •

I spent an interesting half-hour in the Victoria Book & Stationery store, learning the names of the new books, both novels and non-fiction.

There is no lack of pleasing and even beautiful books for children. They are procured nowadays with the speed and perfection of chicks bursting out of their shells, and only differing slightly in coloring and size. But every once in a great while, it is not a mere chick, but a bird of paradise, or at least a bluebird, that pops out of its shell to startle the world by its color and its song, and sets not only children, but grown-up people too, laughing a lot and crying a bit, and sometimes even thinking more than usual.

• • • • •

Such a book is "When We Were Very Young," by A. A. Milne, which is a treasure box of verses that come nearer to crystalizing the spirit of the child, in all its phases of curiosity, wonder, fear and delight, than any I have ever read, except those of Eugene Field, who told of "Winken, Blinken and Nod," and the story of "Shuffle-Shoon and Amber-Locks," and some of Robert Louis Stevenson's verses.

One of the verses contained in the book was Mr. Milne's contribution to the Queen's doll's house, and has already sent its little tender tune ringing through the world. It begins:

"Little boy kneels at the foot of the bed,
Droops on the little hands little gold head.
Hush, hush!—whisper who dares!
Christopher Robin is saying his prayers!"

The success of the book depends almost as largely upon the illustrations as upon the verses. Few understand the humor of childhood so well as Ernest Shepard, whose rollicking little pen-and-ink drawings appear on every page.

"The Great Pandolfo," by W. J. Locke, which ran as a serial in Harper's Bazaar, has now appeared in book form. "Wild Geese" is the name of the novel written by Martha Ostenso, winner of the Canadian novel prize of $13,500. Others are: "Sunlight in New Granada," by Wm. McFee; "The Mother's Recompense," by Edith Wharton; "To Lhasa in Disguise," by W. McGovern, and "The Greatest Book in the World," by A. Edward Newton, author of "The Amenities of Book Collecting."

Best Way to Loosen Stubborn Cough

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

The Lonely House

By MRS. BELLOC LOWDNES

THE STORY SO FAR

LILY FAIRFIELD, a young English girl, on a visit to her mother's step sister, the COUNTESS POLDA, at her place, La Solitude, Monaco. Lily arrives, apparently, before she is expected, and the Countess seems somewhat put out about it.

HERCULES POPEAU, middle aged Frenchman, who has helped make Lily comfortable on her journey.

ANGUS STUART, another traveling companion, captain in the London Scottish.

CRISTINA, foster-sister of Count Polda, who acts as servant at La Solitude.

MR. PONTING. He arrives to explain that he cannot stay for dinner. The Count and Countess seem annoyed, and persuade him to stay on account of Lily. He tries to give Lily a lovely little antique box he has bought from an old woman at the Casino at Monte Carlo, but she refuses, not wishing to accept such a valuable gift from him.

CHAPTER VI

The Feast

Mr. Ponting, who sat opposite his host, did not need much entertaining, for he did all the talking, and ate but little. But, as the meal went on, Lily could not help noticing uncomfortably that the visitor was drinking very freely the three kinds of wine.

Count Polda did not take any wine himself, but he often got up and helped his guest generously.

Lily grew more and more uncomfortable. She wished Mr. Ponting would eat more and drink less! She herself was dreadfully hungry, and she was the only one of the four there who made a really good meal.

For perhaps the tenth time Mr. Ponting had begun a long, somewhat incoherent speech with the words: "And now I'll tell you a yarn," when Lily saw Aunt Cosy make her a little sign, and she got up.

The visitor looked up with a rather dazed look. "Why," he said thickly, "going already?"

"Only to the salon," said the Countess smoothly. "You and the Count, dear friend, will follow us presently."

She motioned Lily out in front of her rather mysteriously, and then she shut the door.

"Foolish fellow!" she exclaimed; and there was a touch of harsh contempt in her voice.

Lily said nothing, but she felt annoyed. It was horrid of Aunt Cosy to speak like that of kindly, grateful Mr. Ponting.

The Countess went on: "It is sad to see such a fine young man drink too much!"

"It is indeed a pity," said Lily in a low voice.

She hated this talk about their guest, and she dreaded the thought of his reappearance in the drawing-room. It was therefore with relief that she heard the Countess suddenly exclaim: "And now you had better go upstairs and get a good long night's rest, dear child. Are you not sleepy?"

"Yes," said Lily. "I do feel sleepy."

The Countess opened the dressing-room door. "Cristina?" She spoke for once in quite a low voice.

The old woman emerged at once from the little passage leading to the kitchen.

And again Lily was struck by Cristina's deathly pallor.

"Bring a glass of water for Mademoiselle"—the words were uttered very curtly.

And then, rather to Lily's surprise, there came a touch of color in Cristina's pallid face. She turned away, then came back a few moments later with a glass of water.

"I have got a candle already lighted in Mademoiselle's room," said Cristina.

Holding the glass of water, Lily went off, quickly, upstairs.

Her bedroom looked dreary and uncomfortable, very unlike her pretty, bright room at The Nest.

She walked over to the little table by the bed where stood a lighted candle, and began drinking the water. It had a slight taste, and holding it up to the light she saw that it was cloudy. She put it down without drinking any more.

She turned and pushed aside the heavy curtains and saw the window was closely shut. She opened it, top and bottom.

She had just finished unpacking the rest of her things when she heard the noise of a door opening and shutting downstairs. That must be the Count and Mr. Ponting leaving the dining-room. How long they had stayed there!

There came the sound of another door opening and shutting—that of the drawing-room. And then Lily suddenly bethought herself with some dismay that she had no idea when the Count and Countess had breakfast, or at what time they would like her to be called. Surely she ought to ask Cristina?

She walked over and opened the door of her bedroom, and at once she heard Aunt Cosy's worried voice call out, 'Is that you, Lily? Do you want anything?"

"I only want to know what time breakfast is."

"If you will ring, Cristina will bring you a cup of coffee, English fashion."

The Countess actually came up the staircase. She looked flustered and ill at ease. "I hoped you would have been asleep by now, dear child," she said.

"I had to finish unpacking," Lily said. "I suppose Mr. Ponting is just going. Do remember me to him—I didn't say goodbye to him, you know."

"I will—I will!" said the Countess hurriedly.

Something made Lily open the door after she had heard the Countess go down the steep, narrow stairs.

And then all at once there came Aunt Cosy's loud hearty voice: "Goodbye, Mr. Ponting, goodbye—and good luck!"

The words echoed through the quiet house. And Lily, now suddenly feeling very, very tired, undressed, said her prayers, and blew out the light. She was glad to feel that her first day at La Solitude was over, and that a long, quiet night lay in front of her.

It may have been an hour later when suddenly Lily Fairfield sat up in bed. In a moment she knew where she was, and yet she did not really feel awake.

Something now seemed to be impelling her, almost ordering her, to get up and to begin walking through the silent, sleeping house. She got up, slowly, reluctantly, and then she walked automatically across to the door of the room and opened it. She felt impelled to open also the door opposite to that of her own room—the door which she had been told led into the room in which old Cristina slept.

Lily walked blindly on, to the dim patch of light which was evidently the window of Cristina's room. The blind was up, but the window was closed. She stared out, but she could see nothing, for it was a very dark, moonless night. And then, suddenly, there fell on her ear the sound of deadened footsteps floating up from the terrace. A moment later she heard the long French window of what the Countess called the grand salon open quietly.

And then it was that all at once, standing there behind the still closed window, Lily remembered her fifty pounds—the fifty pounds she had asked Aunt Cosy to keep for her, and which she had seen Uncle Angelo put in the ebony and ivory cabinet!

Lily listened again, intently, and after what seemed to her a long, long time, she heard the window below closing to, very quietly. Then came the sound of footsteps—it seemed to her more than one pair of footsteps—padding softly away across the lawn into the wood. Then followed a curious long-drawn-out sound—so faint that she had to strain her ears to hear it at all.

She gave a stifled cry—something had suddenly loomed up on the broad ledge the other side of the closed window. It was the big cat Mimi—Mimi dragging herself along by the window-pane and purring, her green eyes gleaming.

Frightened and unnerved, Lily turned and felt her way through the dark room to the bed. She might at least wake Cristina, and tell her what she had heard. She put out her hand, and felt the smooth, low pillow—then slowly her fingers travelled down, and to her intense surprise she realized that the bed was empty, and that it had not been slept in that night.

Tomorrow—Lily's Fortune.

good cause to complain of the laws of this country, except those who find it hard to break them. But we often hear, and I am sorry to say sometimes for a good cause, of their defective or improper administration.

"The relevancy of these remarks must occur to you when you recall the incidents of the present trial.

"It would be an affectation on my part, as it would be on yours, to pretend we do not know what is current in the minds and expressions of many of our people as regards the death of the young woman from which this very trial has received a coloring which it should not possess.

Judiciary's Hands Are Free

"And in the interest of the public; in the interest of the proper and unsullied administration of justice here; in the interest of the independent judiciary of the Province, which judiciary it well may be is still the only true intervening independent agency on behalf of the public as against lawbreakers, I wish to assert on my own behalf and that of my brother judges that no ulterior influence is allowed to interfere with our proper discharge of the sacred trust reposed in us, the discharge of which we have signalized by a most solemn oath of office.

"If an extraneous incentive were indeed necessary to insure the proper discharge of our duties, Parliament, which itself cannot if they would, have rendered themselves impotent to interfere by making us independent of them and all elements of the public in a most explicit manner by our constitution.

"With a view, therefore, of assisting in arriving at a true verdict on the evidence, I shall dwell briefly on the questions of law involved in this case. The presumption is that you do not know the law and that I do. You will take the law as I tell you.

Not a Problem Play

"To begin with and supplementary to what I have already told you, you will take it from me that in criminal cases the fact that the crown has not established or disclosed a motive is not a circumstance in favor of the accused. The motive is immaterial if you find the charge as laid is proved. A man's conscience should be his monitor, not his accomplice.

"It is no defence to say that the crime was committed because some one else so ordered it. It is the duty of every good citizen to disclose the commission of a crime known by him to have been perpetrated. In my reference to the evidence you must clearly understand that I do not assume any fact or circumstance to be proved. I only state the whole hypothetically and conditionally. I leave it to you entirely to determine how far the case is made out to your satisfaction. In this connection I wish you to be careful to distinguish between advocacy and evidence.

"No trial designed as trials by juries should be, to ascertain a question of fact, turned into a problem play. You must not guess, let your guess be ever so accurate."

Firecrackers Must Go!—But What's Going to Happen on Chinee New Year?

Firecrackers must go.

And with them bombs, squibs (whatever they are), rockets, and all the other pyrotechnic devices with which on Hallowe'en, children, old and young made the night hideous and their own souls beatific—for the Police Commission says so; said so yesterday afternoon, as a matter of fact.

Thus children, young and old, may bid farewell—a fond farewell, to all their noisiness—unless they can get a permit from Chief Fry to set off their firecrackers in the streets of the city.

Commissioner Aitken was moved to champion the cause of the children. Firecrackers were an "innocent pleasure" to which the "kiddies" looked forward every year; though he did object to the high-powered ones and the bombs.

What's going to happen on "Chinee New Year" is an interesting speculation. Presumably the Chinese will get a permit.

The city jail is not so very big, after all.

built by the Alberta Government to Jasper, and give a main entry into Alberta.

He considered that the House should not alone think of development projects by large interests but should pay equal attention to the needs of the small farmer and settler who needed the helping hand of the Government. The operation of the Associated Growers' Relief Act had worked out much more satisfactorily than he had anticipated, Mr. Bruhn admitted. Credit was also due to the Minister of Agriculture for the manner in which he was attempting to serve the farming industry.

Country Has Suffered

He was often asked, he said, what had become of the old Agricultural Credits Act, which had provided cheap money for the farmers. This had been replaced by the Land Settlement Act, and he believed that the interests of the country had suffered as a result. The former legislation had given assistance to the man who was actually on the land, while its successor aimed to develop areas for future settlers. It was not wise economics to attempt to settle prospective settlers at the expense of driving those who had toiled hard to clear a few acres and required the assistance denied to them.

He renewed his plea for cheaper stumping powder. He found that since his last address to the House on the subject, farmers were obtaining powder cheaper than the retail trade, but he believed that the Government should endeavor to still further reduce the cost of this essential.

"While I am dealing with farming," he added, "I would like to say that I do not see how we can put farming on a solid basis in this country so long as we allow Orientals to buy and lease land. With their lower standard of living they are able to farm more cheaply than the white man, and in consequence are gaining control of large sections of the country and are squeezing the white man out of the localities."

He would strengthen up the Game Act enforcement by appointing wardens in the Spring and have them wage war against the predatory animals that destroyed the young game animals and birds.

In reference to the Personal Property Tax, Mr. Bruhn said that if it could not be abolished he would ask the Government to so amend the Act as to make it apply in proportion to the profits of the business firms taxed.

Not so Different to Others

He was not going to discuss the Pacific Great Eastern, said the Salmon Arm member, because he knew nothing about it, and he made it a rule not to talk about things he did not know, but he laughingly added that in respect to the P.G.E., he was no different from some others who had talked about it, except in his principle.

In urging the construction of more roads in his district, Mr. Bruhn paid tribute to the workmanship and service done British Columbia in the past by the old road foremen who had supervised the building of most of the highways of British Columbia.

Saanich to Pay Damages Cost to City Fire Truck

Council Voices Sympathy to Widow of Fireman Who Lost Life — District to Tender on Drydock Work

Potato Growers Assisted

Damages to the city fire truck in the recent accident on Gorge Road, in which Mr. Fred Medley, Victoria fireman, was killed, amounting to $353.50, will be forthwith paid by Saanich municipality, as a result of a decision made by Saanich Council, in regular business session last night at Royal Oak.

On the motion of Councillor Kirkham, the council decided to pay the account of $353.50, expressed regret that the unfortunate accident occurred and thanked the city fire department for the services of its truck and firemen on the above occasion.

A communication, expressing condolence of the council upon the sad death of her husband, will be forwarded to Mrs. Fred Medley.

Confirm Superintendent's Action

The council confirmed the action of Road Superintendant Girling in submitting a tender for supplying road material at the drydock. If Saanich receives the contract, sixteen men will secure employment for two months in this work.

Saanich was informed that its share of the cost of replacing the landing under the Gorge Bridge, a project entered into jointly with the city of Victoria, was $570.52. The account was ordered to be paid.

An invitation to members of the council to attend the unveiling of a memorial tablet on Gonzales Heights on Thursday afternoon, November 9, was accepted.

Asks for $50 Grant

The Victoria Poultry Association asked the council to make a grant of $50 to the forthcoming provincial poultry show. The request was referred to the finance committee.

The council granted the sum of $100 towards the prize list of the Victoria Potato Growers' Association display at the Potato Show at New Westminster.

A deputation from Eberts district urged the council to effect improvements to a portion of Hughes Road. The sum of $100 will be spent on the roadway.

Reeve Macnicol, in reply to a query, said that no money would be spent, nor work done by Saanich this year on the old B.C. Electric right-of-way.

Member for Alberni Insists Upon Action Over Minimum Wage Act

Prepared, If Necessary, to Put Government Out on This Issue—Condemns University Expenditure, and Would Scrap P.G.E.

"I am not a supporter of this Government. This House must this session deal with the matter of a Minimum Wage Act for British Columbia. I know that I have a number of sympathizers on both sides of the House and if the Conservatives and members of the Provincial Party stand up and support me I am willing to put the Government out if necessary on this issue."

In the foregoing terms Major R. J. Burde, Independent-Labor member for Alberni, in the course of his contribution to the debate on the address in the Legislature yesterday, announced his determination to follow up the eight-hour day bill, for which he was responsible, with a Minimum Wage Act.

"I know that the Government is not anxious for this legislation, but I am willing to enter into any kind of a combination to see that white men get the measure of justice in this Province to which they are entitled," Major Burde added with emphasis.

Predictions Not Fulfilled

The member for Alberni, after declaring his intentions, spoke of the opposition he had met with during the several years he had advocated the adoption of the eight-hour day legislation. It had been argued that the big mill at Chemainus would not be enlarged, that the railways would suffer severely and that the apple-growing industry of the interior would be ruined because the price of apple boxes would be increased. But none of these things had happened. The Chemainus mill is the largest on the Pacific Coast, and other industries had not suffered.

Major Burde told how the Alberni-Pacific mill in his own constituency had put up a notice that it would operate ten hours a day, but that this had been prevented by the firm action of the Board of Adjustment and the Attorney-General's Department. The board had demonstrated that there was no "joker" in the measure by its efficient administration of the act.

Bill Works Well

"The bill is working satisfactorily today," Major Burde went on to say, "the only objection to it being that the men who are working under it in the lumber mills are starving." He failed to see how it was possible for men to support families on thirty cents per hour.

Those who opposed the proposed legislation, he said, were asking how it was going to be possible to make the lumber industry pay with a minimum wage law in force. It was just as important that the men working in the biggest industry of the Province should be given justice and, until some pressure is applied to give them the justice to which they are entitled, it is nothing but cant for people to go around talking about this being a white man's country. As far as he was concerned he was prepared to see the mills closed down until such time as the lumber industry can afford to pay a proper wage.

Expenditures Condemned

"I have never known a fish packer or a mill man to admit that they made money in any one year. Ask them how they keep alive and buy high-priced cars and they will tell you that they are being carried by the banks," said the member for Alberni, who thought it strange that they could continue with this form of "bank robbery" over a long period of years.

Major Burde was emphatic in his condemnation of the expenditures in connection with the Provincial University. He was in agreement with Sir Arthur Currie that there is "too much wasted education in this country." He had been informed that ninety per cent of the students in attendance at the University come from Vancouver and district. It was unfair, he said, that the people living in other parts of the Province, most of whom are scratching hard for a living, should be taxed to turn out more lawyers and doctors than are necessary.

Premier Criticized

It was claimed that half the population of British Columbia lives in Greater Vancouver. That was the great trouble with the Province, said the member for Alberni. It would be much better if half the citizens of Vancouver were living throughout the Province and contributing to the development of its natural resources. He was critical of Premier Oliver for treating $750,000 over-expenditure on the University as a mere trifle.

"The rest of the Province is in a state of revolt over the University and the P.G.E. expenditures. These two things saddle the people with $2,500,000 in taxation, most of which is being paid for the benefit of the city of Vancouver," declared the member for Alberni, who went on to give his reasons for his opposition to further P.G.E. expenditures. Had the Government taken his advice four years ago, when a number of members made a trip over the line with Premier Oliver, they would have scrapped the whole line, but the Premier was a stubborn man and would not listen to good advice, although he was willing to give him the credit of being honest. He suggested that the Government give the people of Fort George a land grant as compensation for scrapping a railway that begins nowhere and ends nowhere.

Greater Interest Urged

Major Burde emphasized the possibilities of expenditures much greater than estimated should a decision be made to extend the P.G.E. The bridging of Cottonwood Canyon alone would cost millions of dollars, if it did not prove to be an engineering impossibility, he said.

Major Burde criticized those who demand a reduction in taxation and ask for heavily-increased expenditures in the same breath. He instanced the demands made by the Associated Boards of Trade of Vancouver Island, in convention at Alberni some time ago, in resolutions calling upon the Government for expenditures on the Island running into millions.

Socially, he said, there was no nicer place in the world than Victoria, but he did not think very much of the outlook or the acumem of the business men of Victoria. "In our district," he said, "we always speak of Victoria as the East and it looks to us as being quite as far away as Halifax. We are interested in the development of the West Coast and we would be glad to see the people of Victoria take an interest in things outside their own doorsteps."

Highway Not Approved

Particularizing, Major Burde took exception to the proposal for the construction of a highway, at a heavy cost, around the southwest coast of Vancouver Island to Bamfield. The highway would cost a lot of money and would be of little use, apart from attracting a few tourists to the Island.

"What is the use," he said, "of asking for the expenditure of millions of dollars on roads and for reduction in taxation at the same time? Under existing circumstances, if we spend our money in keeping up the roads we have we will do very well."

In his opening observations, the member for Alberni made some sympathetic references to Attorney-General Manson, whom he referred to as the "boy wonder from the North." He defended Mr. Manson in connection with the Yamamoto case, declaring that no evidence existed to show that the Jap was insane before he committed murder. Opposition members had abused the Attorney-General for something about which they did not know a great deal. As a matter of fact, he said, there was not a white man or a Jap who knew Yamamoto who did not believe that he should have been hanged before. It was a customary thing in the United States, he said, to have people go insane after they had committed a crime, but in Canada we did not stand for that sort of thing, and Attorney-General Manson was to be congratulated for not adopting anything from the legal procedure across the border.

Action Approved

Major Burde was also disposed to approve of what the Attorney-General had done in connection with the Janet Smith case. At one time there were ugly rumors abroad, amounting almost to a suspicion that Mr. Manson was hiding something and that there was a conspiracy of some kind. Then he was accused of not going far enough in this matter. Now he was being criticized for going too far. In his opinion, the Attorney-General stood to the best of his ability for the principle of the observation of law and order. Once in a while, in view of his great responsibilities and many troubles, Mr. Manson was surely entitled to "a note of kindness," he said.

Donzelon Wins Liverpool Plum

Takes Autumn Handicap by Neck Carrying Lowest of Weights —Amethystine Second

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 13.—Donzelon today won the Autumn Cup, the principal race of the Liverpool meeting, carrying a purse of £2,000 at a distance of 10 furlongs, 170 yards. The winner is owned by Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux.

Dowager Lady Nunburn-Holme's Amethystine was second and William Singer's Sarus third.

Donzelon, a four-year-old bay colt, carried the low weight, 88 pounds. Amethystine, four-year-old filly, carried 100 pounds, and the three-year-old Sarus 106.

The Liverpool Autumn Cup is outstanding among the late handicaps. It was established in 1856 and its value is approximately $9,000. Though for three-year-olds and up, the second season runners capture it only about once every five years.

Donzelon, at 100-6 against, won by a neck, while a length separated the second and third horses. The betting against Amethystine was 9-1 against and Sarus 15-2.

The Sons have entered a fast team in the city league and are taking on St. Andrews squad to get into condition for their league games. These two teams met a week ago and the Sons came out victorious after a tight game. St. Andrews hope to reverse the decision tonight.

Famous Tennis Player Passes

Robert Wrenn Was American National Singles Champion for Four Years

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Robert D. Wrenn, famous Harvard athlete and four times national tennis champion, died last night of Bright's disease in his Hotel Madison apartment. He was fifty-three years of age. Entering Harvard in the Fall of 1892, "Bob" Wrenn played on Varsity football, baseball and hockey teams. Tennis later proved his forte. He won the American singles title in 1893, 1894, 1896 and 1897, and shared the doubles honors with Malcolm Chase in 1895. He twice turned back a British invader when he stood alone between the challenger and the championship.

In 1894 Goodbody, the Irish champion, had beaten Hovey, Hobart and Larned, when Wrenn met and defeated him. In 1897 Dr. Eaves, champion of Great Britain, defeated every American but Wrenn.

National Hockey League Will Require Big Staff Of Official Referees

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—One hundred and twenty-six games in the National Hockey League this Winter, especially with the contests spread on four and five days of each week, is going to prove a strain in so far as referees are concerned, and it is likely that President Frank Calder will have to increase his board of arbiters to much larger proportions than in past seasons. The matter of appointing officials for games is left entirely in the hands of the president. It would appear that the following are in line to handle games this season: Cooper Smeaton, Billy Bell, Mike Rodden, Lou Marsh, Dr. J. Laflamme, Dr. Eddie O'Leary and Walter Smaill.

Pirate Hockey Team Has First Workout

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 13. — The Pirates, Pittsburgh's professional hockey team, had their first workout last night, ten men reporting to Manager Odie Cleghorn. Services and Oaks Will Provide Feature Rugby Match for Today

Senior Game to Be Played at Willows Park Commencing at 3 o'Clock Causing Great Interest—Intermediates to Stage Three Matches This Afternoon

The United Services rugby team will make its first appearance of the season this afternoon at the Willows oval when it stacks up against the Oak Bay Oaks in the second league fixture of the year. A great deal of interest is being taken in the game and a large turnout of fans is expected.

The Services from reports have a strong fifteen for today's game. They have been practising regularly for the last six weeks and are said to be in mid-season form. Their pack is particularly strong and some of their forwards hits around the 200 mark. Their three-quarter line is much better than last year and they are looking forward to lowering the colors of the Oaks.

The Oaks will have their strongest team out to battle the combined forces and expect to be able to have another win chalked up to their credit. They have a much lighter team than the Services, but all their members possess plenty of speed, which should help them a great deal.

The team which will go into action today representing the Oak Bay Oaks will be picked from the following players: McLennan, Goodacre, Taylor, Brindley, McIntyre, Adams, Brynjolfson, Shaw, Grubb, Colpman, MacDonald, C. Brynjolfson, Wilson, Beck, Buss, Lampman and Watson.

Intermediate Games

In the intermediate league three games are scheduled. So far this year their games have been closely contested and it looks as if all the teams are about even in strength.

The games for today are as follows:

J.B.A.A. vs. Normal School, at Oak Bay.

Cowichan vs. Brentwood, at Brentwood.

University School vs. Oak Bay Wanderers at Mount Tolmie.

All games will start at 3 o'clock.

The lineups announced last night are as follows:

J.B.A.A.: Brooker, Lambert, Hunnings, Walls, O'Neill, Hulke, Ker, Jones, Henderson, Underwood, McConnell, Clarke, Buller, Turner, Renwick and Dawson; reserves, May and Hall.

Oak Bay Wanderers: Russell, Morris, Donald, Dunn, Harman, A. Wilson, Parfitt, Hicks, Smith, Laundy, Horne, C. Forbes, Brooker, Lister and Morris; reserves, D. Wilson and Cree.

J.B.A.A. to Practice

At the High School grounds, the senior J.B.A.A. and Victoria College will hold a practise game. The match will start at 2:30 o'clock and the following players are asked to turnout for the Bays: Frampton, McLean, McMillan, Fraser, Bendrodt, Huxtable, Clarke, Miller, McRae, Buller, Smith, Mawhood, Peden, Diespecker, Pendray and Porteous.

Makes Hole in One

IF you want to know how to make a hole in one, go and consult Fred Burns, the professional of the Macauley Point Golf Club. His favorite hole for demonstrating the feat is the second on the famous old Esquimalt links. He's liable to do that hole in one any old time. He did it yesterday, but not for the first time. That was some four years ago.

Yesterday he was playing with Dr. Maunsell when his tee shot reached the tin 173 yards away, and two members of The Colonist staff saw it done.

Mr. Churchill Explains His New Optimism

Overseas Trade Increasing —Cost of Living Down— Fewer Strikes — Better Harvest

LONDON, Nov. 13.—Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has given the members of the Engineers' Club what he calls his "twelve apostles of reassurance."

The members of the club had accused the Chancellor of being unduly optimistic and he furnished them with the following reasons, which he considered as justifying him: British overseas trade slightly increased; increased profitability in the affairs of a great majority of British industrial enterprises; lessening in the cost of living; the yield of revenue which bears out the expectations in mind when the budget was framed; the consuming power of the people has been maintained and even increased; the savings of the people have increased; fewer days lost owing to strikes; unemployment not increased, while employment, as compared with a year ago, has increased; the world has a good harvest and the best harvest is on the right side of the Atlantic—an important factor when considering Great Britain's debt repayment; there has been a magnificent cotton crop, an important factor for Lancashire; and the result of the Locarno conference.

Victoria High School Ruggers Win First Game From Oak Bay

Nine to Three Final Score of First Game of Three-Game Series to Determine Team to Meet Vancouver for Provincial High School Championship

The Victoria High School rugby team won the first game of the three-game series with Oak Bay High School to determine which team will meet Vancouver for the Thompson Cup, emblematic of the British Columbia High School championship, yesterday afternoon at Cranmore Road by a score of 9 to 3. The match attracted a big crowd and was keenly contested throughout.

At the end of the first half in yesterday's game the Victoria students were in the lead by a score of 6 to 3. A try about half-way through the second period by the Victoria team brought their total to nine and was the only score of the half.

Both teams showed plenty of form during the match and the three-quarter work of each was splendid. In the scrum, Oak Bay had a big advantage and heeled the ball out almost every time. In follow-up work and tackling, however, the Victoria boys were far superior and the advantage gained by the Oak Bay scrum was easily offset.

The Victoria High used a great system when they saw the superiority of the Oak Bay scrum. Their three-quarters lined up as close as possible to the scrum, and as soon as the ball was passed out they were on the Oak Bay threes in short order. This had a decided effect on the Oak Bay three-quarters line and many runs which might have gained a score were broken up.

Hunnings Opens Score

Hunnings opened the scoring for the Victoria High when he went over near the flag following a three-quarter run. The try was unconverted. A few minutes later Johnson added another three points to the Victoria score on a fine three-quarter run. Macmurchie failed to convert from a difficult angle.

From the kick-off Oak Bay took up the attack and for the space of ten minutes were fighting in the Victoria twenty-five. Twice in a few minutes they were dangerous, but the defence of the Victoria students was strong and they were held out. Stewart, following a scrum-down, received the ball near the line and crashed his way through to give Oak Bay their first and only score. Mearns was wide in his try for extra points.

Just before the period ended Songhurst was sent off the field by Referee Sparks for interfering. At the beginning of the second half he came on again at the request of the Oak Bay captain.

Victoria had quite an edge on the play in the second half and most of the time were fighting in the Oak Bay side of the field. Some fine work by Eagle, the Oak Bay fullback, when Hunnings broke through, prevented what looked like a sure try.

Johnson Gets Over

Johnson scored his second try of the game and ended the scoring of the day when he went over near the flag following a forward rush. Macmurchie failed to convert.

Once the three-quarter line of the Oak Bay team got into action, but their wing man was forced out a few feet from the touchline. Following the throw-in Victoria took up the attack but could not break through for a score. Macmurchie was sent off the field near the end of the game for talking back to the referee. Sparks refereed and the teams were as follows:

Oak Bay High School—Eagle, R. Knight, Mearns, Cleveland, Crawford, Tarry, McIllmoyl, Stewart, Player, Evans, Spurgin, Keay, W. Knight, Harrison and Sherwood.

Victoria High School — Kennedy, Knott, Le Marquand, Hunnings, Macmurchie, Shaw, Songhurst, Johnson, Killick, Walker, Gaitskell, Dunn, Curtis, Turgoose and Crothall.

Alderman Calls Colleague Liar; Fight Follows

Witness of Scuffle Changes Mind — Calls Aldermen "Members of Council" Instead of "Gentlemen"

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—High words and blows marked a meeting of the usually dignified city council this afternoon. The meeting was discussing the unemployment question with a delegation from the ranks of the unemployed present to ask for the start of relief to workless men.

Ald. Leonard, during a heated debate, remarked that there was plenty of work for any one who wanted it. Ald. Flye, Labor, took prompt exception to the remark and called Ald. Leonard a "liar, and a damned liar."

The calm of the council was immediately disrupted. Ald. Leonard cleared the table in two jumps and struck the Labor alderman three blows on the side of the head and demanded an apology.

This only incensed Ald. Flye to further assertions of Ald. Leonard's untruthfulness and a serious scuffle was in prospect until another alderman spread oil on the troubled waters. The dispute ended with Ald. Flye withdrawing his remarks and shaking hands with Ald. Leonard.

Another riffle arose when a member of the unemployed delegation remarked that he had been about to address the body as "gentlemen," but that after the affair he had witnessed he could only say "members of the council."

Aldermanic dignity was affronted at this and the session was brought to a rapid conclusion when the council refused to hear the speaker and informed the delegation that there was no money in the year's estimates for unemployment relief and that single men had been warned that they could not look to Winnipeg for aid this Winter.

The delegation had urged that the council reverse "its decision to withhold aid from single men."

Sportive Punches

By the "Old 'Un"

Some people are much better than others at swallowing matter of different kinds, such as fish stories, swords and things.

• • • • • •

Oh, yes! the Old 'Un knows they swallow fish stories, never mind how, if you can't guess, and he's seen a man swallow a sword.

• • • • • •

By the way, how he did it without—no, not cutting himself (the sword was good and blunt), but making himself sick—we can't imagine. It very nearly made us sick to watch him.

• • • • • •

But the yarn this Old 'Un can't swallow is that one they're springing just now about poor old King "Tut"—sport of grave robbers.

• • • • • •

We simply cannot swallow the tale that the X-ray is going to tell us whether he died of T.B., T.N.T., a snickersnee, or just an overdose of dope.

• • • • • •

We don't know a great deal about X-rays except that they enable your dentist to forecast the early cutting of your third set of teeth, but—

• • • • • •

We are inclined to think that they are likely to be of less use in diagnosing the disease which carried off a monarch of the age of Conan Doyle's pets, there or thereabouts, than in locating the last little lump of gold or precious stone which may possibly be concealed among his mummy wrappings.

• • • • • •

And these things make us reflect, as old 'un's will, of Time, which makes and unmakes most of the fences and restrictions which affect the beings of this world.

• • • • • •

(The Editor says we've got to stick to subjects connected with sport in this column. He thinks we're getting a bit off the mark just now in the "silly season," but wait a minute.

• • • • • •

What is more important in sport than TIME? What's the good of reporting that John Jones won the hundred yards dash from the champion unless you give the time?

• • • • • •

What's the good of getting back on your feet in the ring after your opponent has caused you to slip backwards onto the floor unless you do it within a certain time?

• • • • • •

And what's the good of putting all your beef into a swing at a golf ball unless you time it right?

• • • • • •

Having thus sufficiently demonstrated that Time and sport are closely connected, we proceed to enter our protest (they're always doing that in sport nowadays) against making Time the excuse for grave-robbing.)

• • • • • •

It seems to us to be poor sport to dig a man up for the sake of the ancient trinkets buried with him, and it's not playing the game at all to X-ray his poor remains at a time when it's quite impossible to bring anybody to justice for presumably murdering him.

• • • • • •

We all know that we shall be a "long time dead," but that does not any the more reconcile us to the thought that our corpse may be stood up against walls and X-rayed for other people's amusement, or emolument, at any time between now and Eternity.

Slip Is Precedent To G.N.R. Service

Lumber Arbitrary Rate Will Be Removed Against Victoria Conditionally

A change of policy with regard to the Great Northern Railway's decision not to include Victoria in its equalization of terminal lumber rates in connection with certain ports on Vancouver Island is forecast by a statement from Mr. F. M. Yorke, of Vancouver to Mayor Pendray, in which he declares that Victoria's lumber mills will be offered the same rates as Mainland mills if a suitable ferry slip were erected in the Inner Harbor.

The Canadian National Railways has already offered the concession effective to Island ports, but at present the Great Northern Railway offer is limited to the ports of Chemainus, Genoa Bay, and Sidney. Formerly, when the G.N.R. owned the Victoria & Sidney Railway, and the terminal line in association therewith, it had a ferry from Sidney to the Lower Mainland.

Capt. Yorke declares that if offered a guarantee of six cars he would come here to Victoria, provided that the slip was placed at a suitable location in the Inner Harbor.

Lumbermen regard the announcement of action by two companies as of great benefit to the lumber business, and one which will help the expansion of the industry. The removal of the arbitrary amounts to $12.50 a carload on lumber, it is stated, and to the manufacturers will be of considerable value.

Ottawa G.T.P. View Upheld in Britain

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Canadian Government's course with regard to the Grand Trunk Railway four per cent debenture holders' claims for interest guaranteed by the Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada has been justified, according to an opinion just given by the eminent English counsel, A. C. Clausen, K.C. Mr. Clausen was instructed by the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture holders' committee to examine the general legal position of the debenture holders and give his opinion on it.

The Grand Trunk debenture holders' committee now announce that in Mr. Clausen's opinion the Canadian authorities were within their legal rights in placing loans made to the Grand Trunk Railway Company, subsequent to the date of the agreement with the Grand Trunk Pacific stockholders which guaranteed the interest on their debenture stock, in front of the Grand Trunk Pacific debenture stock in the matter of interest payments.

Sidney Board Interested in Water Question

Issue of Safeguarding North Saanich Will Be Taken Up in Private Bills Committee of House

SIDNEY, Nov. 13.—The monthly meeting of the Sidney Board of Trade was held in Wesley Hall on Tuesday, November 10. President H. A. McKillican occupied the chair. The outstanding discussion took place on the water question, arising out of the acquisition of the Esquimalt Water Company by the Victoria City Council. The view was advanced that, as the Victoria City Council had to approach the Legislature for validating legislation, that the time was opportune for some steps to be taken by North Saanich. As this is an unorganized district, the only body representative of this district being the Board of Trade, it falls on this organization to see that some protection should be given this district. At the present rate of increase in population some provision for an adequate water supply for North Saanich will have to be made in the near future.

The members of the board expressed the idea that now was the time to endeavor to secure protection, and a favorable rate of charges. If North Saanich is to be developed along the lines of agriculture and industrial enterprises, water at a reasonable rate must be secured from somewhere. The result of the discussion was that a committee was appointed to endeavor to put the views of the board before the Private Bills Committee of the Provincial Legislature.

It was decided to hold "an old-time dance" on January 15, in the Berquist Hall, the proceeds to be donated towards the improvement fund of the War Memorial Park. A committee was appointed and an enjoyable evening is assured.

The secretary reported that arrangements had been made for the repair of the Beacon Avenue Wharf, which has been recently damaged.

The secretary reported having received an invitation to be present and represent the Sidney Board of Trade at the fourth annual banquet of the Esquimalt Board of Trade held last Wednesday at which over 100 guests were present.

A communication was read from the Nanaimo Board of Trade, giving a copy of a letter received from Captain J. W. Troup, manager of the B.C. Coast Service, dealing with the request of the Nanaimo Board of Trade for a double Winter service between Nanaimo and Vancouver, after which the meeting adjourned.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Andrew's was held on Wednesday, November 11, at the home of Mrs. Whiting, Sixth Street. The president, Mrs. J. J. White, occupied the chair, and the meeting was opened by the Rev. T. M. Hughes. The secretary, Mrs. Ward, read the minutes, which were then adopted. The financial report read by the treasurer, Mrs. Hughes, also being passed.

The Ladies' Aid of the United Church held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, November 11, at the home of Mrs. Douglas, East Road, with a good attendance, including one new member. After considerable business was discussed the coming play was the topic of importance. The public are asked to keep November 26 in mind, and attend the Auditorium Theatre for the entertainment of the season. Mrs. Douglas and Mrs. Wilson served delicious refreshments and an enjoyable social hour was spent.

Telephone Issue Will Occupy Board

Appeal Expected in Connection With Cobble Hill Extension Along Island Highway

When the Railway Board meets in this city on Wednesday, it is expected that the commissioners will be asked to give a ruling with regard to a telephone matter, affecting residents on the road between Cobble Hill and Cowichan Bay, where the Island Highway forks. It is understood the company and the necessary minimum number of residents have failed to get together with regard to the cost of the extension, which is two miles from the present terminus of poles at the sawmill. North of the Cobble Hill exchange area, which is roughly bounded on the north by the Bench Road, are a number of telephones at Cowichan Bay which are in the Duncan exchange area, but are farther from Duncan than from Cobble Hill. The reason for this apparent anomaly is the fact that the Cowichan Bay subscribers built their telephone line long before the Cobble Hill exchange area came into existence. The point in dispute has been a subject of protracted negotiation and much correspondence between the B.C. Telephone Company and the persons interested.

Chinese Acquitted of Gambling Charges

The charges against Ying Show of having conducted a gambling house and against Lee Chuck and twenty-eight others of being found in this house were dismissed by Police Magistrate Jay yesterday morning. The cases were tried before the magistrate some little time ago and in the taking of the evidence three Chinese who acted as special agents of the police in securing the evidence testified to the fact that gambling had been practised.

The magistrate yesterday in giving his decision said he was not impressed with these three witnesses. There had been a suggestion that a threat had been held out by one of these men that unless money were paid that the place would be raided. He felt that while fan tan was played there it was not unlawfully played but was conducted as a friendly game by members of a club.

London Market Has Quiet Week

Railway Issues Not Favored—Loans Negotiated Following Lifting of Embargo

LONDON, Nov. 13.—This has been somewhat of a broken week on the stock exchange through the "show" in connection with the Lord Mayor's inaugural and the Armistice Day celebrations. The French currency difficulties, moreover, have tended to embarrass the dealings in high class stocks and irregular movements have been somewhat conspicuous in British gilt-edged and European reconstruction loans.

On the other hand, Premier Baldwin's note of optimism, characteristically cautious though it may have been, in his Guildhall speech, in which he discussed the prospects of British industry has created some inquiry for the better known securities of this kind, although the actual business has been of small dimensions.

Truculence from certain leaders among the railway men has caused a large body of investors who are always watching the railway market to hesitate once again, but though rail shares have lapsed into quietude, the general tone remains quiet and steady.

An immense flood of new issues now that the restrictions on loans have been removed to a large extent, has also created a degree of hesitancy. Western Australia and Tasmania today completed underwriting arrangements, the former for £2,500,000, and Tasmania for £600,000. The terms are identical, namely, five per cent interest at a price of ninety-eight per cent, redeemable at parity in 1945 and 1975 in each case.

The Gold Coast loan of last week for £4,500,000 at ninety-four, bearing four and one-half per cent interest redeemable in 1956, is understood to have come largely to the underwriters for, while the offer itself is intrinsically excellent, the terms are generally considered rather high.

Export Demand Causes Recovery in Wheat, and Market Closes Higher

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13.—Increased export trade proved to be the feature of the wheat market here today; although an early price advance of 3 cents was not maintained. The demand slackened off after the noon hour, the close ranging from ¼ cent higher in July at $1.32 to 1¼ cents up in December at $1.30¼. November closed 1 cent higher at $1.36⅞.

The strong cables brought buying orders at the opening, which were undoubtedly for exporters. Exporters stated that acceptances overnight had been large, but that the trade was mostly pool selling. Millers, becoming nervous, were buying for immediate requirements only.

There was an excellent class of buying or barley today, credited to exporters, and prices advanced substantially. The oats and rye markets were dull. The flax market was firm, but trade light.

The cash wheat market was active. Tough wheat was also taken in good quantity.

Vancouver Stock Exchange

WINNIPEG, Nov. 13. — Wheat: Strong cables, combined with a big export business and considerable short covering, carried wheat prices up about three cents during the first part today, but the advance was too rapid, and as the demand became satisfied prices eased off, and final figures were only 1c to ¼c for the two nearby months, while May and July were only ⅛c to ⅝c higher. Wheat sales of Manitobas in all positions were estimated at 3,000,000 bushels, largely worked by the pool, but local exporters also had some acceptances overnight. Exporters were buying the November and December, while there was some outside buying in the deferred, which was understood to be short covering by foreigners. General sentiment is very bullish, while the export news today was solely responsible for the advance in the futures. The market has now had a big advance recently, and should foreign buying show a lull after today's heavy buying, some natural reaction might be looked for. The undertone is very strong, however, and no sharp declines are to be expected for the immediate future.

Receipts continue heavy, there being 2,138 cars of wheat inspected Thursday, while the farmers delivered at country points 5,138,922 bushels, as against 1,743,541 last year. The local cash market was very active, with sales today creating a record for this Fall.

The bulk of the business was in the three top grades, and was mostly destined for the United Kingdom. Tough wheats were also taken in good quantity, and while the offerings of these grades are heavy, a good business is passing.

Coarse Grains: The barley market will be active, with good buying by exporters in evidence, which advanced prices sharply. Oats and rye were very dull and prices were little changed from yesterday.

Flax: Displayed a firm undertone, with prices higher early, part of which was lost later on realizing sales. Trade not large.

Chicago Grain

(Supplied by B.C. Bond Corpn., Ltd.)

CHICAGO, Nov. 13.—Wheat: A sharp upturn in wheat prices, with December selling at a new high on the crop one time eight cents over the May option was attributed to short covering. On the bulges, however, there was heavy profit-taking by those who had bought early in the week and the best prices for the day were not maintained. Export business was good, sales estimated at from three to three and a half million bushels, largely Manitobas. Again calling attention to the light receipts at this market, we do not care to be short any wheat, especially December.

Corn: Corn displayed a strong tone, due no doubt to the strength in wheat which caused local shorts to cover. Sentiment is generally a little more favorable toward corn and we believe it a purchase rather than a sale.

Interest Shifts To Rail Issues

Motors Lose Drawing Power—Great Day's Business Done on Stock Exchange

NEW YORK, Nov. 13. — Chief speculative interest shifted from the motors to the rails on the resumption of the broad upward movement in today's stock market. Trading was again on an enormous scale, total sales of 2,984,300 being exceeded this year only by Tuesday's record-breaking session of 3,340,600 shares.

General Motors encountered the traditional "selling on the good news" following the announcement of the $5 extra cash dividend, the stock closing over two points lower at 137 5-8, and Pierce Arrow, Packard, White and Studebaker yielded fractionally. Mack Trucks showed independent strength by climbing five points to 227 3-4, closing just below the top.

Rails Advance

Rails were under heavy accumulation throughout the session. Pittsburgh and West Virginia advanced 12 1-2 to a new record high at 107, and Atlantic Coast Line recorded a similar gain at 233 1-4, also a new top. New York Central moved up three points to 130, the highest price since 1909, and Baltimore & Ohio climbed over three points to 92 1-2, the highest since 1910.

Heavy buying of the oils was based on reports of improved trade conditions and rumors of an early increase in Pennsylvania crude prices.

Buoyancy also developed in a number of high priced industrial specialties in which favorable developments are believed to be pending.

U.S. Steel Climbs

United States Steel took on a new lease of life by climbing 4 3-4 points to 137 1-2.

Call money held steady all day at 4 1-2 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

With confidence restored by maintenance of the 3 1-2 per cent local re-discount rate and the buoyancy of the stock market, bond prices continued their upward movement with renewed vigor today. Trading expanded rapidly as active bidding developed for all classes of investment and speculative securities.

Transpacific Vessels Are Due Soon With Japanese Oranges

Empress of Canada, Due Monday, Bringing First Shipment of Season—Jefferson Sails From Yokohama With 750 Tons of Fruit for Discharge Here

Liners inbound from the Orient from now on until Christmas will bring in millions of Japanese oranges for the Christmas season. The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada, due here Monday, is bringing the first shipment from Japan.

On board the Canada there are approximately 1,000 tons of Japanese oranges, practically 800,000 bundles, each bundle containing two boxes of the fruit. The Empress also has a shipment of silk valued at more than $4,000,000. The Canada was reported 1,308 miles from Victoria at 8 p.m. Thursday.

Some 200 tons of the oranges will be discharged here, while on board the President Jefferson, which sailed from Yokohama yesterday, there are 750 tons of oranges for Victoria, in addition to 1,500 tons for Seattle. The Victoria consignment of fruit on the Jefferson amounts to approximately 60,000 bundles, or 120,000 boxes.

The Osaka Shosen Kaisha liner Alabama Maru, due here November 19, is also bringing in a large shipment of oranges, in addition to the general freight, while practically every freighter and passenger liner due here up to the week before Christmas will bring in big shipments of the fruit.

The bulk of this cargo will be carried by the larger ships this year, owing to the late season. It is essential to get the fruit to market during the Christmas demand, and the President and Empress liners, having better speed than the Japanese ships, will secure the bulk of the shipments.

As soon as discharged at terminal ports the fruit is rushed to Eastern Canada and United States for distribution, although a large amount for the Atlantic seaboard will be carried by liners on the Yokohama-New York run. Delivery of the oranges by ship to New York is not so quick, and is only used to place a large supply on the market the week before Christmas Day.

GULF ISLAND WINTER SERVICE

The Ss. Otter will leave Victoria 7:15 a.m. every Monday returning to Victoria Tuesday evening, and leave Victoria every Wednesday at 8 a.m. to Ganges Harbor, proceeding to Vancouver on Thursday and returning to Victoria Saturday afternoon.

Ship Scoffs at Ancient Superstition as She Clears for Southern Ports

Friday the thirteenth means no more in these days of operating steamships on regular schedule than it does to railroad passages, and the Admiral line Emma Alexander, Captain Fred Nystrom commanding, sailed with a full list of passengers and a capacity cargo for California ports at 11 o'clock last night.

The original schedule for this vessel was Thursday, but annual overhauling and inspection detained the craft in port an extra day, hence the Friday departure.

Some eighty passengers embarked on the ship, while the Seattle list brought the total to nearly 300 passengers. A heavy consignment of freight was also taken South, including a shipment of lumber for Los Angeles.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of lower low water.

Esquimalt—To find the depth of water on the sill of the drydock at any tide, add 18.2 feet to the height of high water as above given.

Transpacific Fleets Will Soon Be Augmented

N.Y.K. and O.S.K. to Increase Number of Ships Operating From Yokohama to Victoria and Seattle

Lumber Market Improves

As a result of increasing trade between this continent and Japan, the Nippon Yusen Kaisha is planning to allocate a freight vessel for the service between Yokohama and Victoria shortly.

On the other hand, the Osaka Shosen Kaisha has announced that it will dispatch the Altai Maru and the Mexico Maru next month. The O.S.K. plans to allocate these vessels for the transportation of beans and other products from Manchuria and Japanese oranges and silk from Nagoya, Kobe and Yokohama to Victoria and Seattle.

The augmenting of the transpacific fleet by the N.Y.K. and O.S.K. is believed to be an indication that a construction boom is looked forward to in Japan as soon as the permanent construction programme goes into effect at Yokohama and Tokio January 1. Already the Japanese lumber market is picking up and advance orders are now being received by Pacific Coast mills.

Poleric's Cargo Being Adjusted

Three Tiers of Sacks of Grain Will Top Freight to Prevent Shifting

Longshoremen are busy trimming the grain cargo on board the steamer Poleric, which was forced back to port with a shifted cargo and a very bad list to starboard.

The cargo is not being lightered, but is being shifted to different bins, while a large quantity is being placed in sacks. Three tiers of the latter, full of grain, will be loaded on top of the bulk freight so as to prevent further shifting of grain. The work is expected to be completed by Tuesday.

Yarrows Limited has been given the contract on the Poleric. Repair men are going over the ship thoroughly, effecting repairs to various parts of the ship, including the engine-room and steering gear. It is expected that all work will be completed in time to clear the vessel for Shanghai Tuesday night.

McKinley Gets Distress Call In Midpacific

Bridge on Japanese Steamer Ryuwo Maru Carried Away by Heavy Seas—Wireless Aerial Down

Vessel Still Wants Help

Lashed by a fierce storm in mid-Pacific the Admiral Oriental liner President McKinley docked here yesterday morning none the worse for her experience and on schedule time.

While en route here the President McKinley's wireless operator picked upon a distress signal from the Ryuwo Maru on November 7, when nearing meridian 180. The vessel was asking for assistance, stating that her bridge had been carried away by the heavy seas and that her wireless aerial had been carried away.

Changing her course the McKinley went to the assistance of the Ryuwo Maru, but before arriving at the scene received another message stating that help was not needed and that the vessel could make Honolulu under her own steam.

Advices received today state the Ryuwo Maru, a Japanese steamer, is disabled approximately 2,900 miles due west off San Francisco and wants help from a Japanese ship only.

The President McKinley did not experience such rough weather as the Aorgani had. The Ryuwo Maru was only able to transmit messages on an emergency set.

King Tutankhamen Found To Be Boy of Sixteen

the day's work, and there is more to come.

Carter and his assistants began their work with the mummy's feet. The head is still wrapped in hundreds of feet of fine linen. The most fascinating question of all, whether upon the brow rests the crown of Upper and Lower Egypt, is therefore still unsolved.

Crown May Be on Head

Carter, with his invariable painstaking scientific carefulness, refused to be hurried in his work, and tonight the officials who came to Luxor to witness the unwrapping on behalf of the Egyptian Government—Director of Antiquities, Lacau; the Governor of Kena province, Drs. Derry and Saleh Hemby Bei (Government radiologists) and Saleh Enan Pasha (Under Secretary of Public Works)—had planned to return to Cairo with this point in doubt, knowing only that a protuberance on the brow indicates a diadem if not a crown, that, considering the splendor of the other jewels and royal regalia already discovered, must indeed be marvellous. Just before train time, however, Prof. Lacau and Dr. Hemby cancelled their reservations and decided to remain at Luxor another day in order to witness the completion of the unwrapping of the mummy tomorrow.

It had been hoped that this secret unwrapping, which Egyptian officials who enforced their will upon Carter and his assistants sought by every means possible to conceal from the world, could be completed last night. So careful were the measures taken that this morning I was still the only newspaper correspondent present in the valley. Later one befezzed Egyptian journalist turned up.

Secrecy Forced by Egypt

I was met with scowls and black looks from the native guards on duty, who sprang out of the tomb of Seit when I approached.

Two soldiers carrying rifles joined the guards, a proceeding which led to apologies later from the excavators.

Yet the excavators, working under Egyptian direction, were afraid to disobey the childish edicts of secrecy which their Egyptian masters seek to enforce. The penalty of disobedience might be the loss of the part of the treasures which the Egyptians have promised to the excavators should their procedure during the remainder of their work meet with Egyptian approval.

No Photos for Newspapers

Monsieur Lacau, the French Director of Antiquities, told me tonight: "There is to be no publication of any facts or photographs relating to these discoveries by any newspaper in the world. The newspapers have behaved so badly that we decided not to permit them to print anything excepting those items which the lay public is fit to understand, and these items will be given out in official communiques from Cairo. We shall permit Mr. Carter to write serious articles for serious students in serious archaeological or scientific journals, and he may write books. But he must not sell any photographs."

This attitude explains my reception at the tomb. I was told that no facts would be given out here, and that I had no business to come. Then I was advised that I had better go back to Cairo and ask the Press Bureau for the communique to be issued tomorrow or Saturday or Sunday.

Do Not Dare to Make Complaints

Carter and his photographer, Harry Burton, of the Metropolitan Museum, are in no way responsible for those conditions. They may be unable to continue their marvelous work if they make or endorse any complaints regarding their treatment.

The above personal digression explains the impossibility of describing precisely the royal regalia and state robes of the dead Pharaoh at present.

The wealth of bracelets, jewel-covered clothes and the contents of royal jewel chests sewed into the mummy's clothing left the excavators and spectators at last blase as these objects were taken out hour after hour in handfuls. Any one of scores of these articles would, in the past, have been regarded as the gem of any national collection.

Richest Find in History

Tutenkhamen's removal in his magnificent inner coffin, the most remarkable mummy case ever found, was accomplished with such secrecy that Carter's own workmen were given to understand and believed that Carter had discovered only a lifesized statue of "Kingska," or the second self often placed in these tombs.

The exact object of this secrecy is impossible to ascertain. When the coffin was opened yesterday Burton was busy all day photographing various objects. Moreover, I gather that the amazingly rich finds are not confined to the inner coffin, but many were discovered inside the sarcophagus since the work began on October 17 which were not mentioned in the 600 words which have been given out by the Cairo Press Bureau since that time, purporting to record the main facts of the principal work done since the discovery was first made.

Tutankhemen's embalming, it was found yesterday afternoon, had not been done so as to permit the mummy being unwrapped in the usual fashion. Embalming fluid had so soaked through the bandages that it caused them to adhere to the body, and they have to be cut away in chunks, an operation of supreme delicacy if injury to the flesh is to be avoided.

Jewels Sewn in Wrappings

All previous arguments to the effect that the body would be denuded of its last coverings and that the scientific aims would be attained solely by X-ray examination, went by the board when it was discovered that many jewels were sewn into the mummy's clothes.

Over the body of the king rested a jewelled enamelled gold framework. I hear but cannot confirm that some metal work in the inner casket was badly rusted, indicating some damage by the embalming fluid or other liquid.

Most of the gems found were discolored and dull of hue and will require careful polishing, as will much of the king's regalia, before their full brilliance is apparent.

Wrapped in Sheets of Gold

Although the market value of Tutankhamen's jewelry would be immense, this is due to the art of the lapidaries and goldsmiths of the brilliant court educated in the school of Telel Amarna, capital of the heretic Pharaoh Akhnaton, Tutankhamen's father-in-law, rather than to the jewels themselves, for the ancient Egyptians did not use the stones regarded as precious today. It was emphasized to me that stress should be placed on the tremendous artistic value of the contents of the sarcophagus rather than on the material wealth in gold and jewels, although a great quantity of gold is used in the regalia, and the king himself lay wrapped in sheets of it.

A few scattered gems of other Pharoahs are now in the Cairo Museum.

Summing up the impressions of the last two days, a qualified observer told me tonight that the contents of the ante-chamber, which so excited the world on their discovery, were all second rate compared to the objects placed around the sacred person of the king himself.

Inner Treasures Finest

Just as the vases and other objects between the walls of the four golden shrines surrounding the sarcophagus were finer than those in the antechamber, so when the lid was lifted off the quartzite outer coffin and the first of the three inner golden coffins was opened, the finding of Pharaoh's treasures began.

The first anthropoid coffin was in the form of Osiris. The second coffin, more magnificent than the first and third, is pronounced the greatest surviving example of Egyptian art. It is the work of master craftsmen, and one of the greatest of sculptors chiselled on it the features of the king.

Further information today indicates that the announcement of the discovery of the first royal book of the dead ever known may prove to the general public the most interesting find in the tomb. It contains material which will occupy specialists for years. It is probably the longest manuscript surviving from such a remote period, rivalled only by the papyrus Harris in the British Museum.

Artistic Value Greatest

But to the layman the artistic interest of the manuscript for outweighs its historical value, since it is illumined with hundreds of portraits, executed by the artists of this finest of periods, depicting the adventures of Tutankhamen in the other world. In one picture the king is seen standing in the hall of Osiris praying to God, while his heart is being weighed in the balance. There are hundreds of other beautiful pictures showing all the great gods of the empire.

Carter, I understand, proposes publishing a facsimile of the whole manuscript.

the crew, Engine-room Artificer Bell, says he had a premonition that the boat would not return from exercises on which she set out yesterday morning in heavy seas. On a previous occasion Bell told them the M-1 suddenly sank by the stern and was righted and the forepart submerged unexpectedly.

In its comment on the disaster The Star asks why the craft, heavily handicapped by a 12-inch gun, should have been sent out to exercise in November weather.

Tragedy Greatest of Kind

The tragedy is one of the greatest in the history of the British submarine service. So far as can be recalled the crew of the M-1—sixty officers and men—is the largest ever involved in an accident aboard an English submersible.

Lieut.-Commander A. M. Carrie, who was in charge of the ill-starred craft, had a distinguished service record, although only thirty years old. He was married eleven months ago and has a five-weeks-old son.

Many of the others of the crew were married. One, Petty Officer George Morgan, has a family of seven children, the oldest eleven years and the youngest two months.

Launched During War

The M-1 was launched in 1918 as the K-18. It was originally intended to operate it with the North Sea fleet, and it is understood to employ it in penetrating the Baltic Sea with a view to outflanking the German navy. But according to a general report, it was decided not to employ the M-1 in the war lest the Germans might copy the design and use it in bombarding towns along the English Coast with its 12-inch gun.

The K-class to which M-1 belonged, has been generally unlucky. Three of them were sunk with the loss of all hands and three others also went to the bottom.

Elk Lake Deal Needs Ballots Of Ratepayers

Golf Course Purchase Not Yet Completed—Promoter Would Finish First Nine Holes by Spring

Tentatively, the price agreed upon by the Mayor and aldermen and Mr. J. S. Connell, for the sale of the Elk Lake golf course is $42,000, but no contract has yet been signed, and any agreement between the city and the promoter must be ratified by a vote of the ratepayers.

Mr. Connell is at present in Vancouver. He is expected to confer finally with the civic authorities here next Tuesday.

Mayor Pendray stated yesterday, on his return from Vancouver, that Mr. Connell is prepared to spend $150,000 on the development of the property into a big Summer resort. This sum will be inclusive of the purchase price of the land, which will be paid in instalments, according to the present basis of negotiations. The initial payment will be $5,000. In the next two years he would pay $2,500, and then would pay the rest of the price in $5,00 instalments. Interest at six per cent would be charged by the city.

Mr. Connell would have the first nine holes of the golf course completed by next Spring, should the deal go through.

The promoter is willing to pay fair wages and to purchase all supplies here. He wants the city to negotiate with Saanich to obtain assurance that, if the latter municipality decides ultimately to tax the property involved, the annual levy will not be large. He also wants the city to fix a rate for water in the event that pipes be laid to the property.

At an informal meeting of the Council yesterday afternoon, Mayor Pendray and Aldermen Woodward and Todd were named a committee to go into final details with Mr. Connell.

Prairie Travel to Begin in New Year

Mr. C. E. McPherson Enthusiastic for Movement After Special Rates Start

Travel will begin to move to the Coast cities soon after Christmas, so far as the Prairies are concerned, according to Mr. C. E. McPherson, assistant passenger traffic manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who is in the city.

The special fares on the railways from Prairie points will then be operative, and the movement for the months of January and February should be encouraging, according to information he has obtained during a recent tour through the Prairie Provinces. A decided improvement in business and a feeling of optimism have combined to assure a heavy movement of travel in the near future to the less rigorous climate of the Coast.

Mr. McPherson came to the Coast with another Winnipeg official, Mr. H. F. Mathews, general superintendent of sleeping and dining car service for Western lines.

ABLE TO DO HOUSEWORK NOW
Sick a Year. Got Great Benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Bloomington, N.S.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains and backache, also for nervousness, sick headaches and sleeplessness. I was troubled in this way for over a year, and a friend told me about the Vegetable Compound and induced me to take it. I must say I have received great benefit from it and am able to do my housework now. I recommend the Vegetable Compound myself and am willing for you to use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. William Morse, Bloomington, Annapolis County, Nova Scotia.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes."

This means that 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Mrs. Morse is simply another case of a woman receiving "great benefit." Women suffering from the troubles so common to their sex should listen to what other women say who have experienced the same sufferings and found relief. Give this dependable medicine a chance—and at once. It is sold at all drug stores.

Trial of M. B. Jackson et al Is Postponed to Nov. 19 in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Nov. 13.—M. B. Jackson, K.C., special investigator in the Janet Smith case; Reeve J. A. Paton, H. P. McCrane, David Paterson, and Mrs. F. B. Stratton, charged by O. B. V. Robinson with complicity in the Wong Foon Sing abduction, were remanded in police court until November 19. J. A. Russell, who, with J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., is appearing for Mr. Jackson, objected strongly to November 9 being set for a peremptory hearing and finally the adjournment was granted on the understanding that the case may be stood over again.

Fine Mr. X's Secretary 4,500 Francs in Paris

PARIS, Nov. 13.—An echo of the notorious Robinson case was heard in the Paris courts today when Captain James Charles Arthur, former aide de camp to Sir Hari Singh, now the Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir, was sentenced to thirteen months in jail and fined 4,500 francs. Captain Arthur was convicted of receiving stolen property for his handling through a bank, of a cheque of £120,000, alleged to have been paid by the Rajah after the discovery of his relations with Mrs. Charles E. Robinson, wife of an English bookmaker.
